Mansfield Loses No Time In Steps To Acquire 1,000 Acres For Big Project.

STATE DOING ITS SHARE

Authorization To Plan Change In Course of State Route 13 Being Pushed.

Told what its responsibilities are to obtain the federal government's airport expansion program here, Mansfield today lost no time in taking initial steps to sponsor the project.

Developments moved swiftly on the heels of yesterday's announcement that a 1,000-acre tract had been selected as the site for the $600,000 project which is expected to eventually represent a $1,400,000 "gift" to the city. The land tract adjoins the present airport.

Within hours after city had been told by Civil Aeronautics Administration engineers that the site had been selected and preliminary plans drawn, here is what happened:

1. All available data concerning the proposal had been turned over to the legal committee of the Chamber of Commerce by Mayor W. J. Locke with a request for determining the amount of funds necessary to acquire the land. He also asked what city funds could be utilized.

2. The state highway department had been requested to authorize the re-location of state route 13.

3. Utility companies were asked to prepare for removal of existing overhead lines crossing the site.

The chamber's legal committee was expected to meet within the next few days to go over the data prepared by the CAA, C. H. Huston, chairman, said today.

Huston said he was attempting to get the six-man group together "as soon as possible."

Other members of the committee are City Solicitor Leslie Wag-

OPA Plans To Check Prices of Many Home Items.

WASHINGTON—(U.P.)—Prices on 15 kinds of used consumers' durable goods, which have been soaring under wartime scarcity of new products, will be brought under tighter control on Sept. 15, the office of price administration announced today.

Articles affected include used furniture, bedding, stoves, floor coverings, portable lamps and lamp shades, miscellaneous houseware items, hand tools and hardware items, such as shovels, wheelbarrows, hatchets and carpenters' tools.

The new program also will apply to baby carriages, musical instruments, except pianos, commercial kitchen equipment, beauty and barber shop furniture, store and office fixtures and coin-operated vending machines.

Columbus Man Tells Different Stories to Chicago Police.

CHICAGO —(U.P.)— Fred Burns, 32, of Columbus, O., who was found in downtown Chicago with a bullet wound in his back, was held under police guard at a hospital today while authorities investigated conflicting stories he told of the shooting.

Police said he told several versions of being shot by a bandit during a holdup attempt. He said he had left his luggage at the bus station, but he did not have a claim check.

Anti-Saloon League Starts Move Barring Drinks By Glass.

COLUMBUS —(U.P.)— Ohio Anti-Saloon league officials, considering a campaign to eliminate sale of liquor by the glass in Ohio, today awaited results of an informal public opinion survey on liquor problems by the state's ministers.

"Now we're trying to find out what public sentiment actually is and when we do, we'll decide what should be done next," Supt. S. P. McNaught said.

NINE SOLDIERS ARRESTED

'E' Flag Unfurled, It's Back To Work for Westinghouse

With the same precision that goes into the most vital of its war products, and with 4,000 workers and their families looking on, Westinghouse ran up its Army-Navy "E" pennant yesterday, and then went back to work.

From start to finish, the actual ceremony of presentation and acceptance took exactly 32 minutes—and considering the fact that a merciless sun was beating down on all present perhaps it was just as well that the event didn't last longer.

But in those 32 minutes, there were packed three out-standing moments. One was the tribute paid Carl Rockwell, Mansfield sailor, who occupied a seat on the platform, and was honored for his bravery as a member of the navy when his ship, the Yorktown, was sunk in the south Pacific.

Another was the flight across the vast lot at Fourth and Wayne streets, where the ceremony was held, of five trim and speedy Grumman Corsair planes, for which Westinghouse makes wing assemblies.

The third was the appearance and address of Major General Thomas J. Hanley, jr., son of a well-known Mansfielder, whose brief talk not only paid tribute to the efforts of Westinghouse workers but warned all that this country could not "coast along to victory" and that "there is only time for war and the struggle for victory."

It was Hanley who presented the "E" pennant to C. L. Van Derau, works manager, and James L. Anderson, vice president of Local 711, United Electrical and Radio Workers.

"There can be no letdown in your efforts," Gen. Hanley told

Spotlight Shines on Wounded Sailor at Colorful 'E' Show

By MARY DAVIDSON

From a platform filled with representatives of the army and navy, workers and executives at the presentation of the Army-Navy "E" award to the Mansfield Westinghouse plant yesterday it was Carl Rockwell, wounded sailor and former employe, who stole the show. . . . at least a good part of it.

Rockwell's appearance as representative of the 661 fighting men and women who have gone out from Westinghouse, crystalized the spirit of American war production, of the men and women in industry making the equipment for their sons, brothers and friends on the fighting front. Rockwell received 50 shrapnel wounds when his ship, the Yorktown, was sunk at the battle of Midway.

Though he had to be helped up and down, the partially paralyzed sailor rose to his feet twice in acknowledgment of applause from the crowd.

Before enlisting in the navy in

J. A. C. MAPPING YOUTH CENTER

Takes Up Challenge Resulting From Juvenile Problem; Plans To Speed Program.

Mansfield juveniles' challenge to civic organizations to find them something better to do than "bum around the streets" was accepted today by the Junior Association of Commerce.

First plans for the realization of a recreation center for teen age youngsters were laid at a special board meeting of the J. A. C. last night, Edwin Balyeat, president said today.

"Though we can't find anyone who will rent us a space large enough for a recreation center needs we're going to settle for a smaller place and get the project under way," Balyeat said.

The J. A. C. board made plans at their meeting to incorporate a special organization for the recreation center under the sponsorship of the association.

Balyeat said requests for bids on chairs, tables, and remodeling had been sent out to local dealers and are now being received. When most of the bids are in the association will make a prospectus of the initial cost and cost of operation for a year from which the cost to

NEW YORK —(U.P.)— Two men held up Max Mantis and locked him in the washroom of his haberdashery. A few minutes later, Mrs. Mantis walked in, carrying a tray of food for her husband.

BRIGHT FUTURE SEEN FOR PLANT

Top Westinghouse Officials Say Post-War Employment May Show Increase.

By DON LINDSAY

Post-war employment at the Mansfield Westinghouse plant should be as large, and perhaps larger, than at present.

That was the prediction made here yesterday by A. W. Robertson, chairman of the Westinghouse board, and J. H. Ashbaugh, manager of the appliance division of the company.

It was made at a press conference, immediately following yesterday's Army-Navy "E" presentation ceremony.

Participating in the conference with Robertson and Ashbaugh were George H. Bucher, president of Westinghouse and T. J. Newcomb, sales manager of the appliance division.

Ashbaugh traced the employment graph at the Mansfield plant from its peace-time peak of some 5,500 through the "valley" that marked the period of conversion to war work, and the increase to the present, where employment is now less than a thousand under the peace-time high.

"We expect to add another thousand workers within the next four or five months," Ashbaugh declared.

Looking to the post-war period, when the plant can go back to its usual products, Robertson and Ashbaugh agreed that there would not be a great deal of change in the appearance of appliances immediately. Neither, however, would he comment on what the next five or 10 years after the war might mean from a standpoint of appearance of refrigerators, ranges and other appliances, except to say that "progress and changes" could be expected.

Reason for the prediction that employment would continue at

BROWN, OPA CHIEF, NAMES NEW MANAGER

Gives Chester Bowles Power To Hire and Fire, Predicts Many Heads Will Fall.

REPLIES TO MAXON

Administrator Declares Corn Prices Will Be Held at Present Levels.

WASHINGTON —(U.P.)— Price Administrator Prentiss M. Brown today named a general manager for the Office of Price Administration and said corn prices will be held at present levels.

He disclosed at a press conference that Chester Bowles, Connecticut OPA administrator has been appointed general manager here. He said Bowles will have full authority to hire and fire and he predicted that many high ranking employes of the agency will have to be dismissed under congressional mandate that only those be placed in price jobs who have had business experience.

Brown met reporters after Lou R. Maxon, head of a Detroit advertising agency, had resigned as OPA's chief information officer, charging that the agency would fail unless it purged itself of yong lawyers and "slide-rule" theorists. Maxon had been considered for the general manager's post.

The administrator answered only two of the many charges against OPA made by Maxon in a hotly-worded statement explaining his resignation. He denied Maxon's charge that OPA has not fixed food policy, declaring the one in force is "clear and unmistakable."

He rejected also Maxon's statement that a clique in OPA is proposing that the government take over manufacture and distribution of all commodities, saying "I have never heard any such proposal by any individual and certainly there is absolutely no intention on the part of this office

British Repel Heavy Attack Near Augusta

Americans Drive Six Miles Deeper Inland, Capture Airdrome and Another Italian General as 275 Bombers Blast Messina.

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON—(UP)—The conquest of Sicily has proceeded far more rapidly than the Allies had expected and casualties are far less than anticipated, Acting Secretary of War Robert P. Patterson declared today.

(By Associated Press)

Crack British Eighth army troops have stabbed four miles north of Augusta after beating back a heavy, dangerous German armored attack, and U. S. troops in southeastern Sicily have plunged six or seven miles deeper inland, it was announced today.

The anticipated strong Axis counter-attacks against the swift Allied invasion thrusts were apparently materializing.

Springing against British positions around the seaport of Augusta, Nazi armored units actually penetrated to the harbor and isolated a British brigade inside the town before the Eighth army counter-blow drove them back. The British then raced on to Brucoli, four miles north of the seaport.

The Allied communique asserted "considerable gains" were scored in the last 24 hours, and said the British had pushed "some miles" in their drive toward Catania.

The American Seventh army striking into the Ragusa-Vizzini area chewed off half a dozen miles, captured important heights and another airdrome. Another Italian general and his staff of the 54th Napoli division surrendered south of Vizzini.

NBC Correspondent Alfred Wagg, reporting from a British cruiser off eastern Sicily, said the British had captured Lentini and Carlentini northwest of Augusta. This report was not officially confirmed.

Some 275 Allied bombers teamed for a "smashing assault" upon Messina, Sicily's great supply port opposite the mainland.

British and U. S. parachute and air-borne troops dropped behind Axis lines have carried out successful operations, the war bulletin said.

The Italian communique assert-

YANKS, AUSSIES NEARING KUBO

Close In For Decisive Action To Clear Jap Base In Salamaua Area.

(By Associated Press)

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC—American and Australian troops in the New Guinea theater, keying their attack to the continuing all-American drive against Munda 700 miles to the east, are closing in on Japanese positions in the Kubo area "for decisive action."

This new offensive, announced in a special statement tonight from Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters, was said by an official spokesman to be designed to clear the long-contested Mubo zone of all enemy troops and pin the Japanese back to their lines around Salamaua, on the eastern New Guinea shoreline 12 miles to the north.

As a preliminary success, the Allied forces captured Green Hill, one of the key strongpoints in the Mubo defense system. In addition, an enemy force of "medium size" has been cut off at Mubo.

Allied patrols were reported engaged in intermittent clashes

CONFUSION IN MUNY ELECTION

Late Filers Ask Court Ruling on Lima Situation.

LIMA — (INS) — Confusion on what was the deadline for filing for the municipal election today was the basis of two pleas for writs naming the Allen county board of elections as defendant. The third district court of appeals took them under advisement.

Edward Mihlbaugh, candidate for mayor, and Lester Horton, a taxpayer seek the writs in an effort to restrain the board from holding a primary election Aug. 10 and from including on the ballots names of 11 candidates, who the petitions assert filed their papers after the deadline.

IN DOUBT

London Still Speculates on Rommel Death Report.

LONDON —(INS)— The question of whether Nazi Gen. Field Marshal Erwin Rommel, former commander of the now defunct Afrika Korps, is dead or alive was the subject of much speculation in London today.

Following yesterday's unconfirmed report from Stockholm that the German leader and five aides were shot down by Allied fighters as Rommel flew in a giant transport to assume command of enemy forces in Sicily, information reached London that Rommel still is in France.

According to this report, the marshal is hospitalized at a French city, presumably Aix-Les-Bains.

CLAIMS FDA LET POTATOES ROT

Plant Manager Reports Too Much Produce Shipped.

COLUMBUS —(U.P.)— Four carloads of potatoes, part of 10 carloads which had been held at Athens, Ohio, for two weeks while A. E. Whaley, manager of the Athens Ice and Storage company sought vainly to have a federal agency dispose of the produce which reportedly was rotting, arrived here today.

A food distribution administration official asked on July 1 if the Athens plant could store potatoes for the government, Whaley reported. He said he had informed the FDA the plant could handle shipments not to exceed two carloads. Eight carloads arrived on July 3 and two more later, a total of 211,500 pounds of potatoes.

Sorting has been underway for two weeks, Whaley said, because rot had set in. The potatoes originally were valued at $7,000.

HAVE A MONTH

Soldiers Can Get Insurance Without Exam Before Aug. 10.

WASHINGTON—(INS)—The war department today reminded all soldiers at home and overseas who entered the service prior to April 12, 1943 that less than one month remains in which they may obtain national service life insurance without a physical examination.

No physical examination of any kind is necessary on applications submitted prior to Aug. 10.

TIME FOR ACTION ON AIRPORT EXPANSION PROJECT

EDITORIAL

WITH selection of a 1,000-acre site for expansion of Mansfield's present airport into a modern Class 4 port designed to serve this entire north-central Ohio area, prompt action toward working out further preliminaries is now in order.

Expressed public opinion has been so favorable to the project, and official interest has already been evidenced to such extent as to indicate that no time will be lost in taking the next steps to assure that this great opportunity for Mansfield will be accepted and that the city will willingly meet its prescribed part of the cost.

The government's appropriation of $600,000 for the purpose of providing adequate airport facilities in this area, and recognition of Mansfield as the logical location for this development, gives emphasis to local confident belief that this city's future progress will link closely with advances in air transportation and this is the time to express that confidence in terms of co-operation with plans of the Civil Aeronautics Administration to enlarge and modernize the Mansfield airport.

Competent engineers assigned to that task have viewed possible sites and have decided upon acreage adjoining the present airport on the north as most desirable for expansion to the size required for runways and other needs of an airport designed to accommodate large modern transport planes as well as the smaller ones that are coming into increasing use.

Much thought has already been given to this subject by various officials, including city councilmen, and by the legal committee of the Chamber of Commerce, which was asked to investigate the legal phases of the project.

Now that choice of a site has been announced, other details will come up for attention and it is proper that each of these should be handled carefully, so that nothing may stand in the way of completion of preliminaries or cause delay in start of actual construction work by the time planned, the first of next year—which is not so far off when the magnitude of this project is considered.

As pointed out by Mayor Locke, in calling upon the legal committee of the Chamber of Commerce to make further study of various points involved, there will be need for information as to the amount of city funds needed and procedure necessary to acquire the property, action to re-route the North Main street road and to make changes in two county roads, with other details, each of which will take time.

Of utmost importance is that each of the preliminary steps be taken promptly and carefully by officials authorized to act for the city, and that there be full public co-operation in accomplishing this great forward step for Mansfield.

IN THE CAPITAL-- By Raymond Clapper

ALLIED FORCE COMMAND POST, North Africa—(By Wireless)—Some will say it was just luck but some will say it was the prayer that Pvt. J. Regan scribbled on the nose of the "Coughlin Coffin," a B-26 Marauder bomber.

Clapper

Anyway, "Coughlin Coffin's" last raid over Sicily on Sunday was indeed the last raid over anywhere but the "Coffin" came back on one engine with an unbroken record of never having lost a man, never having one wounded in 50 bombing raids during which the plane was hit many times. Three times it came home on one engine.

"Coughlin Coffin" started out as a jinx ship but became the luckiest ship in the bomber force for no matter how badly the ship was damaged the crew always escaped. There was great commotion among the air force people when the word spread that "Coughlin Coffin" came back from Sicily so badly battered it would never fly in combat again.

A search is now on in the salvage dumps for a spare wing engine and other parts to repair the ship to take her back to America for war bond selling campaigns.

When the factory in America turned out this particular airplane something seemed to be wrong with her. She never was right on her tests but Capt. William R. Pritchard, of Mobile, Ala., had been assigned to the ship and he put up an argument to keep her. Finally it was decided to let her start for Africa. On the night before the flight, one of the mechanics wrote in pencil on the side of the nose:

"God bless the crew of this plane. I'll say a prayer for your safe return.—Private J. Regan."

On the way over the ship's engines sputtered so much she was given the name of "Coughlin Coffin." Captain Pritchard took the ship into its first action on last New Year day on a raid over the Tunis railroad yards. The ship went out on 19 raids without incident but on the 20th one engine was knocked out.

Twice more the "Coffin" limped home on one engine. Meanwhile Captain Pritchard had been made squadron leader and he turned the ship over to another pilot.

In time the "Coughlin Coffin" accumulated 120 flak patches. On Sunday the ship went out on a raid over Sicily under a new pilot, Ft. Lieut. F. C. Mehsner, a blond German boy, 22, who was born in Dresden. His parents became converted to the Mormon church and moved to America in 1926. They lived for a time in Salt Lake, Utah, and now reside in San Francisco.

Just after the bombs were dropped in Sunday's raid, anti-aircraft fire hit the left engine—always it was the left engine that was knocked out—and the ship's hydraulic landing gear apparatus. As Pilot Mehsner prepared to land, one wheel stuck.

Aboard the plane as a passenger was the original pilot, Captain Pritchard.

"I wanted to fly the ship on the 50th mission just for the hell of it," Pritchard said. "We got into an argument about whether this was the 59th or 50th so I decided to go along for the ride, anyway, just to be sure I was aboard on the golden anniversary."

Pritchard kept moving all over the ship during the critical trip home, helping to talk his old pride and joy in safely once more.

"I was sure sweating it out," said Pritchard.

"I was sweating it out for you, too," said Sgt. Joseph J. Krajnik, Bridgeport, Pa., chief of the ground crew, "when I saw the wheel was not down."

As the pilot dropped her down, the right wing struck the ground and ripped partly off as the ship swung around.

That's the end of the military career of "Coughlin Coffin."

FAIR ENOUGH-- By Westbrook Pegler

NEW YORK--This would seem to be a good time for our propaganda department or, more appropriately, some feature editor, to comb the old files and refresh the memory of Americans with some of the more bombastic threats of that bum of bums, Benito Mussolini, the superman of the inflexible will which was to have been imposed on mankind by his invincible Black Shirt legions.

Pegler

They are still there in the record but the swollen little braggart with the inviting protuberant chin has been so demure of late and so full of self-pity that a world brought to war and barbarism from peace and the beginnings of civilization by his reckless, personal vanity may find it hard to believe that he was as vicious as he was. There seems to be a disposition to regard him as nothing worse than a ludicrous fourflusher whereas he was in fact the one who preached war and brutality for their own sake and glorified war as an ennobling experience by which, alone, a nation could grow to greatness.

Adolf Hitler took his early lessons from the bum of bums and Mussolini, then strutting busily about Italy and blowing out his face in puffy orations, with a golden dagger at his belt and an absurd tassel dangling before his eyes, bore himself with an air of great superiority when the mad Austrian in the greasy raincoat, who was to become Mussolini's master, paid him a humble visit in Rome in the role of pupil.

The duce's stylish sycophants, mobsters who had fed castor oil to their personal enemies and rivals and killed many and sent others away to island prisons, also looked down on Hitler as an amateurish imitator and have lived to see him conquer their country and reduce them to the status of contemptible lackeys along with Mussolini, himself.

By contrast with the bum's threats and his predictions of conquest which, incidentally, by no means all Italians doubted or disowned until the actual fighting began, his invincible legions have yet to win a skirmish on any front in this war, from Greece to Sicily and the name of Guadalajara in Spain is only one damned spot that will not out in a vast and disgraceful stipple of defeats and panics. It is charitable but untrue to say that his record somehow will not be imprinted in infamy and endless humiliation on the history of the Italian nation. It is there forever, indisputable and vile and the Italian people well know in their hearts that most of them were enthusiastic followers of the bum of bums until finally he got them into this war and they learned that war hurt. They have their share of guilt too, although, for politico-military reasons the victors, except, perhaps, the Greeks, will salve their pride and their wounds and, for what they may be worth, turn them against the Germans in mischief and sabotage.

The big fighting nations can afford to do that but the Greeks will not forget to remind Italy that a little country took on the bum's invincibles and gave him the advantage of a sneak punch and then mauled them in the mountains until the duce had to yell to Hitler to drag them off. That was sheer military disgrace just as the attack on fallen France was sheer cowardice and the names of these horrors are indelible, however Italy and the Italian people may try to disavow the bum in generations to come.

At one dark hour of Britain's war when she stood alone against Germany, Italy and Japan, and yes, even Russia, except as such help as the United States could give under an adaptation of the sly and dishonest subterfuge of nonbelligerency which the duce used to cover his war in Spain, Winston Churchill had the fighting nerve to address to the Italian people a threat which must have seemed to them to be the ravings of a fighting fool coming off the floor for the last time, bloody and shaken but determined to die game. Churchill said he would rip their African empire to shreds and tatters, an absurd threat from a man whose capital was battered and afire, whose coasts were threatened, who was sparingly shipping his pathetic strength the long way around Africa and whose navy was overstretched, overstrained, patched and rusty. The bum of bums had spent years showing off his tanks and his long, precise rows of war planes assembled for the war of empire in Africa and sending the glorified Grand hotel doorman of his general staff diving through hoops of fire to demonstrate their ferocity.

The British and the French, and of course the Germans, even then insisted on hurting the bum's feelings by reiterating that whatever uniform they wore, the Italian soldiers would still run away when the fighting started and they have never stopped. The bum himself, is no more than a miserable Quisling now, contemptible alike in the eyes of his ally and his foes and the laughingstock of the world.

And on the tomb of the bum, himself, no more fitting phrase could be inscribed than the remark of Stanley Ketchell when he was asked why Jim Jeffries lost to Jack Johnson in Reno:

"The big tramp wasn't even game."

CHARGES FROM EX-DEPUTY ADD TO OPA TROUBLE

Mason Declares Strong Clique Seeks To 'Remake Economy' Under War Front.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — Prentiss Brown's already complex duties as price administrator were further complicated today by serious charges of his former deputy that a strong clique in the OPA is seeking to "remake the American economy" under the guise of war measures.

The charges were made by Lou R. Maxon, the noted Detroit advertising executive who resigned yesterday as deputy OPA administrator. Maxon announced his resignation in a five-page blast at "professorial minds" and "young lawyers" on the OPA payroll, who, he asserted, had weakened the agency with "confusion, indecision, compromise, and miles of legalistic red tape."

It was expected that Brown would reply to the charges today when he presides at a news conference—his third since taking over Leon Henderson's duties early this year.

Brown conferred with Office of War Mobilization Director James F. Byrnes at the White House, but it was denied that the Maxon charges were the reason for the conference. Byrnes has been instructed by President Roosevelt to settle government feuds and inter-agency differences before they reach the stage of public charges and counter-charges.

This latest flare-up within the federal administration came hard on the heels of the Roosevelt-Chester Davis and Wallace-Jones differences, which had barely quieted down after weeks of nation-wide publicity. Davis resigned as food administrator because, he asserted, he was not granted sufficient power to do his job. The Wallace-Jones differences revolved around charges by the vice president that Jones' Reconstruction Finance Corporation was "hampering" the purchase and importation of vitally needed raw materials.

Maxon did not confine his charges to OPA administration and policy, but struck a blow at the government itself, when he asserted that the much-discussed "roll back" of food prices was "nothing more than an empty promise."

"The job of controlling prices and rationing scarce commodities under the tremendous stress of global war is vast enough without the infusion of any efforts to remake the American economy at the same time," Maxon declared.

"OPA needs at once a drastic reorganization, a strong, clear direction, and a liberal transfusion of common horse sense. . . .

"Until these steps are taken and until there is a willingness to simplify price control and rationing as far as is consistent with winning the war, there is nothing more than I can do in OPA."

FORT CRASHES, KILLING EIGHT

Passenger Hobbles 20 Miles With Both Legs Broken Before He Dies.

(By United Press)

COLUMBUS — A Columbus-based Flying Fortress, unheard of since it took off from the Portland, Ore., army air base, on March 3, crashed 24 miles southwest of Springerville, Ariz, killing its crew of eight and one soldier-passenger, Lockbourne army air base officials disclosed today.

The army bomber had taken off from Lockbourne base here on March 1 and made one stop at Great Falls, Mont., before landing at Portland. The plane took off from Portland for Las Vegas, Nev., and was unheard of until July 7 when searching parties from Luke field, Ariz., found the wreckage in mountainous country.

The dead were: Capt. Keith N. Busch, 24, Hillsboro, Ore.; Capt. Rex K. Latham, 25, Alton, Ill.; Capt. Lynn L. Motley, 24, Grand Prairie, Tex.; 1st Lieut. Darwin H. Pfaender, 27, New Ulm, Minn.; 2nd Lt. William H. Startzer, 23, Scotts Bluff, Neb; Technical Sgt. Clyde L. Miller, 23, Meadville, Miss.; Sgt. William R. Appleby, jr., 27, Ventura, Cal.; Pvt. Charles E. Arthur, 21, Jerome, Mo., and Pvt. Geronomo Medina, Portland army air base.

Lockbourne officials said that Medina was picked up as a passenger at Portland.

They disclosed that after the crash, Medina apparently fashioned crutches from bits of the wreckage and walked 20 miles with both legs broken in an effort to find help before collapsing and dying.

PROMISES MORE BEEF FOR ARMY

National Livestock Secretary Warns That Future Still Subject of Worry.

(By Associated Press)

CHICAGO—More roast beef and steaks will be available to civilians and the armed forces over the next few months, P. O. Wilson, secretary of the National Livestock Producers association, asserted today.

But the question worrying cattle men, Wilson added, was the prospect beyond that period—whether enough cattle would be placed in feed lots throughout the corn belt to produce the steaks which will be wanted this summer and next year.

Wilson, commenting on news dispatches from Washington saying the OPA was developing a plan to bring about an increase in meat rations, said the price-fixing agency "cannot prevent beef supplies from expanding, even if it wanted to.

"The claim of the OPA that it is developing a plan to increase supplies is simply an effort to take credit for the normal expansion in receipts which occurs from mid-July until the end of the year."

This year, he said, there also may be some forced selling of cattle from mid-western feed lots because of the difficulty involved in obtaining corn.

"What we should be thinking about," Wilson said, "is not the beef supply over the next 2 or 3 months, but over the next 12 months and more."

HUNTS DEFECTS IN PLANES ON FIGHTING FRONT

Justice Department Extends Inquiry Into Products of Curtiss-Wright.

WASHINGTON — The justice department has extended to the fighting fronts its inspection of airplane engines manufactured by a subsidiary of the Curtiss-Wright corporation to determine whether they have constructional defects, it was learned today.

A justice department official said that a careful check is being made of all engines delivered to the armed forces by the Wright Aeronautical corporation's Lockland, O., plant.

The inspection, he said, is not confined solely to those now in army air force depots.

"We already are checking them at the fighting fronts throughout the world to determine whether they are defective," he said.

Construction, condition and performance are being carefully weighed in the extraordinary inspection which is a part of the overall investigation of the Curtiss-Wright corporation, he said.

The Truman senate committee, in its week-end report on Curtiss-Wright, charged that motor defects had caused crashes of airplanes powered by engines produced at the Lockland plant.

Acting Secretary of War Robert P. Patterson, in a subsequent formal statement, said army investigation had confirmed most of the charges made by the Truman committee. But he emphasized that no defective engines had been placed in service. He made no mention of crashes.

Two army representatives, one at the plant and another at nearby Wright field, already have been removed since the publication of the Truman report.

In recent weeks, the justice department investigative force which has been inquiring into conditions at Curtiss-Wright plants, has been more than doubled. There is no indication thus far, however, that evidence warranting criminal prosecution has been found.

Assistant Attorney General Tom C. Clark, who doubles in harness as head of the justice department's anti-trust division and war frauds unit, has said that there will be "vigorous" investigation. However, both Clark and the department of official statements have said that federal grand jury proceedings will be instituted only if evidence warranting criminal prosecution is found.

Madison high school officials can mark off their list of men available for the Ram coaching job the name of Guy Van Nostrand, coach during the past year at Johnny Appleseed junior high.

I don't know whether it was a secret or not, but Van Nostrand was seriously considered by Madison, not only because of his coaching ability, but because he could teach the subjects Madison wants taught to fill out its faculty rolls.

Like some other cities I could mention, Mt. Vernon has always shied away from naming home-grown grid stars to its coaching staff. Van Nostrand is the first of Mt. Vernon's big names to come back as a Yellow Jacket coach. Home-grown coaches have been the key to the Massillon system.

Athletic Director Tommy Thomas sent word along to the Mt. Vernon board that of several applicants for the assistant coaching job he preferred Van Nostrand as his No. 1 aide.

Incidentally, the recommendations of Coaches Paul Snyder of Mansfield and Mike Hagely of Columbus, under whom Guy has been an assistant coach, carried a lot of weight in his selection for the Mt. Vernon job.

Jack Crider, the Canton McKinley backfield flash of the past couple seasons, was telling the boys in Canton about football practice at Ohio State.

"They really put us to work," Crider related. "Some of the boys couldn't take it, and dropped out. Three reported late for practice one day, and had to turn in their suits.

"Red Williams, McKinley quarterback of two years ago, had a tough time keeping up the pace after laying off of football for a year. One day he looked like he just couldn't get up and walk again.

"'Come on, Red, put some life into it,' Assistant Coach McGranahan barked at him. And Red went right along, as though he'd just come on the practice field, instead of being all in.

"Now I understand why Ohio State players can play 60 minutes of hard football," Crider declared. "They're really in condition."

Crider, who goes to the army this week, had no illusions about starring at Ohio State, even though he enjoyed the summer practice sessions.

"I'm a little bit small for Big Ter competition," he told the boys back home, "but I was ready to give 'em the best I had."

Resume Pennant Drives

American League Race Can Become Scramble.

NEW YORK— (INS) —The St. Louis Cardinals and the New York Yankees were all set today to resume their run for the wire in the major league pennant campaigns after the brief interruption imposed by the all-star game.

* * *

The Cards are sizzling hot favorites to repeat in the National by virtue of the fact that their 5½-game lead over the wobbly Brooklyn Dodgers is based largely on 10 less defeats.

The Cards have won only one more game than the Dodgers, 48 victories to 47, but have lost only 24 as against 34 because of a fewer number of games played. When they make up the difference they can be counted upon to get their share of victories. The Dodgers have lost theirs beyond recall.

The Yankees remain the choices in the American league, but by no such optimistic edge as that accorded the Cards. The Yanks are only 4½ games in front of a fast moving Detroit club, which in 72 games has won 38 and lost 34 compared with the Yankee record of 43 wins and 30 losses in 73 starts.

If the Yanks slip and the Tigers keep coming this can develop into a scramble and in any case is likely to be fairly close, while the National persists in looking like a Cardinal runaway.

The Cardinals are preparing to dig in for a long home stand, while the Dodgers will hit the road and complete a swing through the west before they settle down at Ebbets Field again, to give the Cards a further advantage for the immediate future. The Yanks have a similar edge in the American, with Detroit to be travelling all the way into the east.

The only game to be played this afternoon brought Cleveland to St. Louis for an American league tussle, while in that circuit Detroit was at Chicago and Boston as Washington for night games New York and Philadelphia were idle.

In the National, New York played at Philadelphia, St. Louis at Pittsburgh and Chicago at Cincinnati, all in night games, with Brooklyn and Boston idle.

Brews Regain League Lead

Score Five Runs In Twelfth Inning.

(By Associated Press)

Those five-run innings seem to have become a part of Manager Charley Grimm's baseball strategy with his Milwaukee team. Twice in two days those big splurges in the final frame have broken up the games in favor of the Brewers, and the latest has installed Milwaukee in undisputed first place in the American association.

Aided by Indianapolis' split with Kansas City, the Brewers last night regained the Association lead by defeating the Louisville Colonels 10 to 5, in 12 innings.

It was a good ball game for 11 innings.

In the 12th, however, Grimm set his boys to work. They loaded the bases on a hit batsman, a single and a walk, and Tony York tripled to send all men home. Hershel Martin followed with a double scoring York, and Grey Clarke added a single to bring Martin home.

The Indians, meanwhile, ran into some kind of tough stuff in the first game at Kansas City, then the Blues sent 13 men to bat and netted eight runs in a big fourth inning which saw Roy Zimmerman hitting two doubles. The Blues won that one, 9 to 2, but the Tribe picked up a 7 to 3 decision in the second.

Fred Sanford lifted the fourth-place Toledo Mudhens a notch above the .500 level by turning a one-hit shutout against St. Paul for a 4 to 0 victory.

Columbus was blocked out of a chance to gain a half game on Indianapolis when young Lou Carpenter of Minneapolis hurled an [illegible] allowing nine scattered hits for an 8 to 4 triumph.

Industrial softball leaguers went in for big scores last evening as Mansfield Tire swamped Great Lakes Local 23 to 1, Tappan Stove chalked up a 24-8 victory over Ideal Electric, and Barnes Manufacturing defeated U. E. Local 13-4.

Great Lakes scored its lone run in the first inning while the Tire tallied in every frame but the sixth and eighth.

Tappans' runaway victory included a 10-run uprising in the fourth stanza. The Barnes triumph was a close game until the eighth when Barnes piled up six runs in the last two heats.

With all the run making, there were few circuit clouts, DeHaven and Prosser connecting for Tappans, and Metz for Barnes.

Sinkwich Enters Marine Boot Camp

ATLANTA — (AP) — Flat-foot Frankie Sinkwich, the football fireball, becomes a marine "boot" today, but Frankie still thinks the gridiron is his destiny and he's looking forward to a lucrative professional career at the war's end.

The backfield ace, who galloped and passed his way to All-America fame with Wallace Butts' university of Georgia Bulldogs, takes on marine discipline at Parris Island, S. C., 15 pounds over "playing weight."

"I want to do my part to get this war over," declared the shockhaired Sinkwich. "But football is my first love. I want to play as long as I'm any good."

* * *

Frankie recently was tapped by the Detroit Lions of the National Football league, but he signed with the marines as a reserve last fall before he went into his final Bulldog season.

Buck Balks on Brown Trade

Louis Norman (Buck) Newsom, right, leading pitcher of the Brooklyn Dodgers and one of the veteran flingers in the majors, says he'll quit before wearing a St. Louis Brownie uniform again. Buck, central figure in a club insurrection that followed his suspension a few days ago, was traded to the Browns for Pitchers Fritz Ostermueller, top left, and Archie McKain, lower left, southpaws who hurled for Toledo last year. Newsom, veteran of 12 years in the majors, was with the Browns in 1934 and again in 1938-39.

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.

NEW YORK—(AP)—The A. A. U. handbook probably won't list any new broad jumping records established by sports writers in July, 1943, but from here it seems that the boys have made some remarkably long leaps at conclusions about what Branch Ricky would say to Leo Durocher and vice versa. . . . We don't know what "De Ravolutin" in Brooklyn amounted to, nor what Leo actually said about resigning, but anybody who gave the matter a serious second thought reamzed that Rickey would have to stand back of his manager as long as possible. . . . The general impression when neither Branch nor Leo turned up for the all-star game Tuesday was that they were holding their discussion privately while the scribes were in Philadelphia. . . . And sure enough, the publicized conference didn't take place yesterday but Rickey came out with a statement that Durocher still is "in."

SHORT THOUGHT.

If Rickey did give Durocher the heave-ho, or let him resign, he'd be on the spot himself the rest of the season. . . . Any new manager would have to cure the dissension on the club and get the skidding bums back into the pennant fight—two tough jobs. . . . So if Branch let Durocher out and the move wasn't successful, the directors might let Branch out with no more ceremony. . . . He's only a hired man, too.

RECORD EFFORT.

If Gunder Haegg returns to Sweden by plane instead of by tanker, he'll likely make his farewell appearance at Yankee Stadium about Aug. 21 instead of at New Orleans. And he may try for a mile record at Princeton as a build-up for the last show.

TODAY'S GUEST STAR.

Harvey J. Boyle, Pittsburgh Post-Gazette: "That rumbling to the east is the call of the wild—the wild Brooklyn fans, a measure of whose capacity for denunciation is to be had from the fact that the most flowery term in their vocabulary of praise is 'our bums.' What such a dubious accolade, born of success will change to in failure will make a fishwife's vocabulary the essence of circumspection."

Indians Lose To Servicemen

Drop 1-0 Decision Without All-Stars.

ST. LOUIS, Mo.—(AP)—The six Cleveland contributions to the American league all-star team rejoin their Tribe to open a five-game series with the Browns today.

After the series here, the Indians move back to Philadelphia's all-star game stadium to launch the season's second eastern trip next week.

Without the services of the all-star delegation — Lou Boudreau, Ken Keltner, Buddy Rosar, Jeff Heath, Jib Bagby and Al Smith—the Indians dropped a 1 to 0 decision to Lambert Field Naval Air station in an exhibition game yesterday.

Hal Schumacher, ex-New York Giant flinger, was the Lambert pitcher and allowed only three hits. Mel Harder started on the mound for the Tribe allowing four hits in three innings, and was relieved by Ray Poat, who gave up two singles in five innings.

TAKE ON CUBS

CINCINNATI —(AP)— The Cincinnati Reds, back from a fair Philadelphia outing to a bad eastern tour, take on the Chicago Cubs tonight in the first of a four-game series.

Elmer Riddle, seeking his 12th victory, is the Reds' likely pitcher, against either Hiram Bithorn or Claude Passeau.

The Reds have won five of their eight games with the Cubs this year.

Little Chance for Four Minute Mile

SAN FRANCISCO — (AP) — Track experts predicted today that Gunder Haegg of Sweden has only a slight chance of running the mile in the long-awaited "miracle" time of four minutes flat when he meets Boston's Gil Dodds here Saturday.

Statistics compiled by H. Archie Richardson of the San Francisco Olympic club show that it would take the combined efforts of three of the greatest milers in history to run the combined laps in 3:59.9.

Richardson said that W. G. George of England, who turned in a 4:12 mile in 1886, ran the fastest recorded first lap — 57 seconds. Jack Lovelock of New Zealand, who established a world's record of 4:07.6 in 1933, ran his second lap in 62.2 seconds.

Glenn Cunningham of Kansas, in lowering the mark to 4:06.7 in 1934, clipped off a 61.8 third lap and Lovelock had a fourth lap time of 58.9.

Other national and world champions who will be featured are Ensign Carnelius Warmerdam in the pole vault; Marine Private Hal Davis of the University of California in the sprints, and Cliff Bourland of Southern California, National A.A.U. 400-meter titlist.

More than 500 racing fans cycled to the Newmarket, England, race track on opening day.

ZIVIC-MONTGOMERY BOUT BUILDING UP

PITTSBURGH —(U.P.)— Former welterweight champion Fritzie Zivic said today he was considering an offer from Promoter Herman Taylor to fight lightweight champion Bob Montgomery in Philadelphia, Aug. 16.

Zivic is scheduled tentatively to meet either Kid McCoy or Shiek Rangel here Aug. 9. He has never fought Montgomery.

Beau Jack Has Tutor

Earns $100,000 But Can't Read or Write.

By JACK CUDDY

PHILADELPHIA —(U.P.)— Beau Jack, boxing's youngest ex-champion, has two important events scheduled for September.

1. He will try to recapture the lightweight crown from Champion Bob Montgomery; and (2) he will try to pass the literacy test to enter the army.

This Georgia Negro, who at 22 has banked $100,000, but who was rejected twice by the army because of his inability to read and write, is training here for a 10-round bout Monday night with Johnny Hutchinson, Philadelphia Negro, at Shibe park.

Whether Beau Jack wins or loses Monday, the fight will serve as a tune-up for his guaranteed return title tilt with Montgomery who defeated Beau Jack at New York on May 21.

Meanwhile, Jack is studying under a special tutor, to get the fundamentals of an education he missed as a shoe shine boy at the Augusta (Ga.) Masters' golf course.

Beau Jack will add probably $15,000 to his bank account Monday, since promoter Herman Taylor expects the fight to draw more than $55,000.

The advanced sale of tickets is so large that Taylor said he will confer with promoter Mike Jacobs of New York on the possibility of staging the Beau Jack-Montgomery fight in Philadelphia instead of in New York.

* * *

Jacobs has contracts with managers of both fighters for the September fight to be held in New York. However, last night Frankie Thomas, pilot of Montgomery and Chick Wergeles, Jack's manager, said they would prefer to have the bout in Philadelphia, Montgomery's home town, where it doubtless would draw the most money.

Bobo Balks on Trade To St. Louis Browns

Brooklyn House Cleaning Move Irritates Old Bobo Somewhat.

By JUDSON BAILEY, Associated Press Sports Writer.

FIREWORKS still are popping among the Brooklyn Dodgers and that loud noise you heard last night was Louis Norman (Bobo) Newsom exploding as he was bounced out of the Brooklyn baseball parlor.

The latest repercussions from the Dodgers' family feud were a statement by Branch Rickey, president of the club, that he would support Manager Leo Durocher to the limit and an announcement that Newsom, the cause celebre of last week's rebellion, had been traded to the St. Louis Browns for a pair of antiquated southpaws, Fritz Ostermueller and Archie McKain.

Newsom, never at the loss for words, roared in defiance:

"I don't want to play in St. Louis. I won't play in St. Louis and I'm not going to report.

"I got the dirtiest deal any ball player ever got. I've been the goat all the way through this thing. I guess I'll have to quit and I will quit before reporting to St. Louis. I heard about this only yesterday afternoon and I offered to buy my release from the Brooklyn club, but was refused."

Whether the boisterous Bobo goes through with his threat remains to be seen. Changing uniforms is no novelty to him for even before today he was the most traded pitcher in the big leagues and in 13 seasons in the National and American leagues had played variously with Brooklyn, the Chicago Cubs, Boston Red Sox, Detroit Tigers, Washington Senators and St. Louis Browns. In fact, during his long career he had een with the Browns, Brooklyn and Washington twice each.

Newsom, if he reports, should help the Browns. He won 20 games for them in both 1938 and 1939 and in 1940 he won 21 and lost only 5 in leading Detroit to the American league pennant.

His pitching this year has been the most consistent of any of the Dodger hurlers and his present record of nine victories and four defeats is one of the best in the National league. Although the Dodgers need southpaws, Ostermueller and McKain, both veterans now relegated to relief roles, cannot be expected to match Newsom's work.

But Rickey felt that either Durocher or Newsom would have to go as the result of the insurrection of the players last Saturday, when they revolted because Newsom had been suspended for what the manager later termed "general insubordination" and more specifically described as refusal to follow pitching instructions.

Just how the players, who revolted over a three-day suspension for Newsom, would react to the banishment of their star pitcher was a problem which puzzled some observers.

In any case the blow-up apparently has blasted any Brooklyn hopes of winning the National league pennant and it was enough to make even the stoutest Dodgers take to a sick bed. Literally it did, because Rickey was confined to his bedroom all day yesterday by an attack of indigestion.

Confusion among the Dodgers may make it difficult for some fans to concentrate on the pennant races again immediately, but nevertheless the major leagues were to resume their schedule today after a three-day intermission for the all-star show. Three contests were on tap in each circuit, with five of the six games being slated at night.

The Story of an

AMAZING NEW LIVE BAIT

(Recently published in The American Weekly, May 2 Issue)

A colorful tough lure that challenges all others and the first Bait ever sold by dealers with this guarantee (catch fish or your money refunded).

LI-CUT BAIT is the first live lure to be bred especially for fishing. After years of scientific study and proper feeding, a larvae was produced containing an oil which is thrown off in the water, detected and relished by fish, as it is a natural food for them.

L. R. BOWEN, breeder of LI-CUT, has for years enjoyed good fishing with American and European Beetles, their larvae and pupa. Each type has certain peculiarities and a definite attraction to fish beyond that of earth worms proven beyond doubt in several states. Through cross breeding of the beetles (Tenebrio Melitor and Tenebrio Obscurus) we have a deadly taker of fish and we issue a challenge for any lure (live or artificial) that will take more fish—you name the fish and the water.

Originally begun as a hobby and experiment for personal use, but later commercialized to keep fishermen off his front porch in the middle of the night, Bowen has built a modern hatchery so as to raise them in sufficient quantities to ofer them to the fisherman who really likes to catch more fish than his neighbor.

Through proper controlled temperatures in the hatchery we are able to grow them and hold them in three life-size stages.

The first stage as shipped lasts, in ordinary temperature, from three weeks to two months, but if placed in ice box or unit will lie dormant indefinitely without extra food or care. The pupa life stage is short, but is very active when molested. Often this stage is deadlier than the first. The beetle (black with red belly) is the Eskimo killer and readily gives knee action in icy water. Set some aside on receipt of package and try all three.

Three Strikes Break Peace On Ohio's Labor Front

AKRON CITY TRANSPORT SYSTEM HIT

General Tire and Canton's Timken Plant Crippled By Walkouts.

(By United Press)

The peace of the Ohio labor front, quiet for many months, was shattered today when three strikes broke out in northern Ohio, halting transportation at Akron and interfering with production at two war plants.

The most serious walkout was in the Rubber City when 450 employes of the Akron Transportation company failed to report for work in protest to a wage decision by an advisory panel of the war labor board.

But the General Tire and Rubber company at Akron also reported that 1,200 workers called a "wildcat' strike in the truck tire department and halted all work in the department.

Meanwhile, a federal conciliator attempted to effect an agreement between officials of the United Steelworkers union (CIO) and the Timken Roller Bearing company at Canton which would return more than 300 idle workers to their jobs.

Several hundred rubber workers were reported to have failed to reach their jobs today when members of the Transport Workers union (CIO) walked out and tied up bus and street transit operations at Akron, Barberton and Cuyahoga Falls. Approximately 207 vehicles were idle.

The company reported it had received no warning of the intended walkout which began at 4:30 a. m. after the WLB's advisory panel's decision denying wage increases was read to union members.

Officials of the General Tire local of the United Rubber Workers union (CIO) disavowed the walkout of 1,200 workers there and called it an "outlaw" strike.

The immediate cause of the strike was not disclosed, but one official said that the walkout occurred because of "accumulated grievances."

At the Timken plant, the company reported the men walked out in a dispute over the change in working schedule of a veteran mill recorder when a woman replaced him on the job. Union officials said the change was made without their knowledge, which, they said, was required under terms of the company-union contract.

SETS UP NIGHT OFFICE HOURS

Election Board To Be Open Evenings For Registering of War Workers.

The Richland county board of elections today announced that evening hours will be maintained at the office in order to permit war workers to register for voting at the November election.

The office is the first to set such hours since the CIO council last week requested night hours for retail stores, banks, dentists and other business places as convenience for war workers.

Beginning Sept. 28 and continuing through Oct. 2, the election board will be open from 6 until 9 p. m., and on the final day of registration, Oct. 4, the office will be open continuously from 8 a. m. to 9 p. m. The office now is open daily from 8 a. m. to 4 p. m.

Decision on the registration schedule was reached at a meeting of the board last night.

The board also awarded the contract for printing of the ballots for the primary election Aug. 10 in Shelby to the Courier Printing company which submitted a bid of $39.50.

The board voted to request the city of Shelby to extend from 30 to 60 days before an election the deadline for filing petitions for candidacy for offices there. This would make the filing deadline conform to that for Mansfield offices and also is in conformity to the state law. The charter under which Shelby government is conducted, sets up the candidacy deadline at 60 days before an election.

Speaker Talks on Rats, Spreaders of Dangerous Disease

Rats are more than disgusting pests, they are destroyers of valuable food and spreaders of some of the most dangerous diseases, Kiwanians and Rotarians were told at a joint meeting held today at the Mansfield-Leland hotel, preceding an afternoon of golf at Westbrook Country club.

The speaker was George Dyer, who is associated with the United States department of interior and is now engaged in directing a rodent control program in Cleveland and Cuyahoga county.

Frequency of reports that rats in considerable numbers exist and breed in parts of Mansfield's business section, and that the animals are often seen running around on streets and sidewalks, led to the interest in gaining information as to means of reducing the city's rat population, which is estimated at 40,000.

Nation-wide destruction by rats is placed at two and a half billion dollars a year and emphasis was also given the disease-carrying ability of these rodents, in addition to the contamination of food with which they come in contact.

In his talk, and with a motion picture, Dyer explained methods of control by rat-proofing buildings to which they are attracted by food or garbage and outlined plans for community co-operation in reducing the present rat population by means of traps, poison and elimination of breeding places.

George B. Ganyard, Richland county agricultural extension agent, introduced the speaker. George H. Smith, Kiwanian, presided as program chairman.

SELECTS NEW OPA MANAGER

Brown Gives Bowles Power To Hire and Fire, Predicts Many Heads Will Fall.

to undertake any such control."

There is no present move to place ceilings on beef cattle. Brown said he wanted to give the industry every chance to work out the beef problem.

The question of placing ceiling prices on live hogs is under discussion between himself and war food administrator Marvin Jones.

No further rationing programs involving major commodities will be undertaken by OPA without congressional approval through appropriation of funds to finance such programs.

The roll-back subsidy program to reduce retail prices definitely will go forward as it involves meat and butter. If it becomes unnecessary to subsidize coffee, then a roll-back in prices of canned vegetables probably will be undertaken instead.

OPA has not done a perfect job and Brown has had difficulty in getting top-flight business leaders to join the organization.

There will be no grade labeling because congress has forbidden it.

Brown was unable to say when rationing of coffee and sugar would be discontinued. The coffee situation, he said, is much improved but no immediate plans have been made to abandon rationing of this product. The future depends upon the shipping situation.

He reaffirmed his determination to hold the price line and bring prices back to the Sept. 15, 1942 levels, whenever possible. He felt that with the control of fresh fruits and vegetables the government would be within about one per cent of this goal.

He promised that Commodity Credit corporation funds would be used, if necessary, to stabilize bread prices at within the hold-the-line limits.

In revealing that the price of corn will remain at present levels —$1.07 Chicago basis—Brown said he had been informed it is moving to market in steadily increasing quantities. He said that one reason why it had not been moving from the farms was the agitation in congress for higher prices of corn. It was only natural, he said, the farmers would hold the crop if there was a prospect that the price would go up.

WORK STARTED

Lake Level Lowered To Allow For Building of Dam.

The lake level at North Lake park was lowered three feet today, Frank R. Burton, superintendent of parks said, to allow for the reconstruction of the dam and removal of a bridge at the east side of the lake.

Work is expected to be started tomorrow by R. O. Darling, awarded a contract for the job several weeks ago.

Total cost of the improvement will amount to $2,500 and will include the removal of a hill north of the pavilion to be used for fill after tile are laid to take the place of the bridge.

Burton said the land north of the pavilion would then be graded and seeded and the four cannons reset.

STATE GUARDS GET TRAINING IN MOB CONTROL

Mansfield's Company F Also Will Take Part In Mock Battle Friday.

Mansfield's Company F, Ohio State Guard was among the guard units at Camp Zaleski in southern Ohio which today were receiving training in mob control and the handling of dangerous crowds.

Members of Company B, 737th military police battalion stationed at Cincinnati, arrived at the camp as the second week of the guard's field training got under way, showing the home front army how to quiet unruly groups.

The M.P.'s demonstrated the spectacular squad wedge, based on tactics of the bone-crushing flying wedge formation which attained fame on the gridiron.

The army men commanded by First Lieut. Nefus S. Newman also gave expert advice in the handling of all types of infantry weapons. The soldiers will instruct during two days of each eight-day encampment period. The field training continues for four more weeks.

The third infantry regiment of the OSG under the command of Col. Emerson Woolf of Akron now is at the camp. Men from these northern Ohio cities comprise the unit: Akron, Youngstown, Canton, Warren, Cleveland, Norwalk, Mansfield, Findlay, Napoleon, Toledo and Bucyrus.

A mock night battle, featuring application of hand-to-hand fighting of guerrilla warfare, ends the regiment's training period Friday. The maneuver will be staged in Vinton county forests.

Other units scheduled for field training at the camp are the first infantry of the Ohio State Guard commanded by Col. Sam Richmond of Cincinnati, the Ohio State Naval Militia under Capt. Trafford Tallmadge of Columbus and the First Separate Company commanded by Capt. Charles Gardner of Cleveland.

A shipment of meat sent to the camp yesterday was parachuted from three Civil Air Patrol planes which flew to the camp with provisions. The flight was made from Canton in two hours under Flight Leader James J. Nibell.

WAR OUTPUT BEHIND AGAIN DURING JUNE

Patterson Says Plane, Ground Supply Output Boosted But Fails To Meet Schedule.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON—War production in June fell substantially below schedule for the second successive month, Acting Secretary of War Robert P. Patterson said today.

During the next six months, he said, the nation must produce approximately three-fifths of overall army supply requirements for 1943.

Patterson said that although the number of planes manufactured in June was slightly above May production, it failed to meet schedules. Combat planes were 70 per cent of the total produced, as against 68 per cent of the total in May. May aircraft production had increased above other types.

Production for the army ground supply program in June increased 1.1 per cent over May," Patterson continued, "but was still 2.3 per cent below April and 4.9 per cent below forecasts of June production."

Projection of major items for the army ground supply program in the first quarter was $4,158,000,000, Patterson said. This was increased to $4,558,000,000 for major items in the second quarter.

"The jobs remaining to be done vary widely," Patterson said. "In the next six months we must produce 61 per cent of the total number of airplanes scheduled for 1943.

"During the same period the technical services must produce the following percentages of their 1943 program:

"Chemical warfare, 68.9 per cent; signal corps, 67.9 per cent; corps of engineers, 65.1 per cent; transportation corps, 62.1 per cent; ordnance, 59.6 per cent; quartermaster corps, 44.8 per cent, and medical department 38.2 per cent."

There is nothing in the production records for May and June to encourage belief that this can be done easily, Patterson said. He described the situation as "a real challenge to labor and industry."

The war department announced, meanwhile, that it has accelerated the process of renegotiating war contracts to recover excess profits.

CHANGE NAMES AT DIZZY PACE

1,500 Clevelanders Alter 'Handles' In Year, Some Results Are Odd.

CLEVELAND—(U.P.)—A rose by any other name may smell as sweet, as Shakespeare said, but there are approximately 1,500 persons in Greater Cleveland who think otherwise.

Records of the probate court in Cleveland show that a dizzy pace was set last year by persons who didn't like their given names for one reason or another — and no doubt as a result the sports writers of the next generation will have an easier time remembering the names of football players.

The records show name transitions from Wieszorkiewicz to Alton, Skrzypczynski to Skryp, Szufiads to Mayers, Yotvitsky to Yotive, Wojchiechowski to Way, Strzempiewicz to Shemple, Andriziescosh to Anderson, Vina to Britton, Cohen to Cowan and Waiczikauskas to Vasil.

Probate Judge Nelson J. Brewer said the principal reason for name changing is the demand for birth certificates which are needed by persons wanting to work in war plants.

"In some cases it is easier to change the names than the records of the birth," Judge Brewer explained.

Americanization of names is another reason responsible in many cases, according to the probate judge.

However, several name changes were made for reasons difficult to find. For example, Votava was changed to Vaparvaux, Byba to Yawt, John to Glynias, Porigneaux to Vanklemputte, Blum to Koepke, Black to Fekete, Johnson to Haquist and Hale to Mancini.

Propagating Berry Bushes In Victory Garden.

By DEAN HALLIDAY
Released by Central Press Ass'n.

Certain of the low-growing bushy types of shrubs can be propagated either by simple layering or by what is known as "mound layering."

As illustrated in the accompanying Garden-Graph, simple layering is an easy and dependable method of propagation. Select a well-growing branch but do not cut it away from the parent bush, instead cut away a circle of bark towards the end of the branch. The end foliage can be left on the branch. Layer of branch on the earth at the point where the band of bark has been removed, leaving the end foliage protruding above the soil surface, as illustrated. Secure the branch in "layering position" with a clothespin or a loop of wire, and cover with friable soil. Mulch the soil or keep it somewhat moist until new roots form on the "layered" branch. After two months when the young roots have found the new bush can be cut away from the parent bush and set out into a permanent location.

Mounding to produce more plants can be applied to quince, gooseberry and blueberry bushes. The bushes are cut back to within a few inches of the ground and a mound of earth is placed over them, as illustrated. The following spring the rooted shoots are cut away from the parent bush and planted out.

The newly propagated bushes, rooted by either method, will require a covering of straw for protection during the first winter.

CITES TRAINING

Dr. Butler Urges Law School For Men In Service.

NEW YORK—(INS)—Dean Young B. Smith of the Columbia university school of law suggests in his annual report to Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler that military authorities select a number of service men and send them to law schools to be trained for legal positions with the government.

Dean Smith warned that the supply of young lawyers is "rapidly approaching the vanishing point" as the result of an 80 per cent drop in the law school enrollments throughout the nation.

This shortage will greatly reduce the number of law-trained men available for jobs with the armed forces, the Dean pointed out. Use of these men by the army and navy, he said, is far more extensive than commonly supposed.

Northwestern's Professors Go Back to School

CHICAGO —(U.P.)— The war is forcing a turnabout at Northwestern university and the professors are going back to school.

Approximately 100 professors temporarily will quit their academic roles to take "refresher courses" formulated to meet an expected shortage of teachers in fields essential to victory.

A survey among the professors disclosed that many were able, in addition to their own specialty, to teach other subjects provided time could be spent in refresher courses.

Four courses were devised for the brushing up process. Mathematics, chemistry, physics and the military use of maps are the first of the courses. Others will be added in various fields where teaching shortages develop.

The survey revealed a large source of teaching ability among the professors. The College of Liberal Arts produced 160 members of the faculty able to teach one or more subjects outside their regular fields.

The "refresher courses" will enable a professor of astronomy or a professor of economics to teach physics and map interpretation.

GERMANS CEASE MAKING DORNIER

ZURICH, Switzerland—(INS)—Production of Dornier aircraft, long the Luftwaffe's bomber stand-by, has been discontinued, it is reported here.

Reason given is that the planes are now outmoded, owing to their excessive weight and low speed.

Workers from Dornier plants are being transferred to the Maybach and Daimler-Benz works. After the last British raid on Stuttgart, Dornier workers were sent there to help clean up the debris.

FLORIDA KEYS HIGHWAY READY IN FIVE MONTHS

Third Done Now, 'Overseas' Road To Be Complete By December 1.

(By United Press)

TALLEHASSEE, Fla—Florida's greatest road-building project, which has been compared with the Alaskan highway because of the man engineering difficulties involved, is one-third finished and its final completion date is slated as Dec 1

It is the 123-mile "Overseas Highway" from Florida City to Key West, the United States' "Gibraltar of the Caribbean"

Chairman Thomas A. Johnson and Chief Engineer J. H. Dowling of the state road department both agree that if nothing serious occurs to delay construction work, the Overseas Highway, renovated from end to end and shorten by 17 miles, will be ready for service in five months.

This 22-foot roadway originates at the tip of the Florida peninsula and winds southwesterly into the Caribbean crossing 32 small islands of the Florida Keys which are linked together by bridges ranging from a fraction of a mile in length to one nearly 10 miles long

Built at the specific request of Army and Navy officials the finished road will have an assessed valuation of some $30,000 000, even though the present project jointly financed by the state and Federal governments will be completed for slightly less than $4,-000 000

The overseas highway is being constructed over the right-of-way of the Abandoned Florida East Coast railroad, a $25,000,-000 dream of the late railroad king, Henry M. Flagler. This railroad was completed in 1912 after nearly eight years' work.

During the time construction was halted several times when storms roared through the Keys sweeping bridges into the sea and washing out portions of the railroad bed The last train to run over these tracks brought survivors of a hurricane Sept 3, 1935, to the mainland from Key West

J C Meredith a former Panama Canal engineer, supervised early building of the overseas railroad venture but he died in 1909 three years before it was finally put in service

The present project includes improvement of 89 miles of roadway five miles of which consists of 22 bridges The state road department is doing all the work on 42 of the 89 miles Two segments, totaling 41 miles, have been let out on contract

Two sections totaling 32 miles, will not be touched because they lie in the Overseas Toll Bridge districts These sections were completed several years ago at an approximate cost of $5,000 000, and have been kept in excellent condition by proper maintenance work

Key West—an hour's boat trip from Cuba—has become one of the most important U S off-coast military centers, since it commands ship lanes between the Atlantic Ocean and the Gulf of Mexico

It is a war-booming city of 30,-000 population, which should be more popular than ever for tourists after the war, now that the long-hoped-for Overseas Highway is practically a reality

Soldiers and Sailors Take Up Correspondence Courses.

BOULDER, Colo —(INS)— Correspondence courses have become very popular during recent months according to the officials of the University of Colorado.

There has been a marked increase in enrollments as the result of a plan set up by the Armed Forces Institute, under which the service men pay half the cost of correspondence courses with the government defraying the other half.

Soldiers and sailors are taking advantage of the opportunity of advancement in their courses being taken in army and navy camps

Studies include aviation principles, various science subjects, photography, personnel management, vocabulary building, and English composition

Butler has flown 40 missions with different pilots

COLD STEEL

New Process For Bullet Cores Speeds Up Output.

CLEVELAND — (INS) — Cold drawn steel bars for bullet cores today were flowing out of the plants of the American Steel and Wire Co, U. S Steel subsidiary in ever increasing numbers surpassing anything recorded in production of that type anywhere at any time

The cold drawn bar steel has been developed from open hearth steel which has proved suitable for use in the core, or "stinger" of machine gun ammunition.

Previously production of cores was limited sharply because specifications called for electric furnace steel and centerless ground bars The capacity for production of this type was curtailed by lack of centerless grinders

The use of cold drawn steel bars for machine gun ammunition cores eliminates the use of electric furnaces for this type of production

THEATERS

Star Personalities.

"Stage Door Canteen," now playing a week's engagement at the Ohio, is the first picture in which stars appear as themselves instead of as actors and actresses playing fictional parts. Katharine Cornell makes her motion picture debut as a coffee server, her usual job at New York's entertainment spot for service men, and many other top ranking performers perform their various duties. Six "name" bands are seen in this film. They are Kay Kyser, Benny Goodman, Count Basie, Xavier Cugat, Guy Lombardo and Freddy Martin.

Rogers Film.

Roy Rogers' latest Western picture, "King of the Cowboys," opens tomorrow at the Park. Roy is backed up by a cast including Smiley Burnette, the Sons of the Pioneers band, Peggy Moran, Dorothea Kent, Gerald Mohr, Lloyd Corrigan, James Bush, and Russell Hicks. The other Park attraction gives the movie detectives a chance to go to work. It is "Mantrap," starring Henry Stephenson.

Saludos Amigos.

"Saludos Amigos," (hello friends) is the current top attraction at the Madison. Here Walt Disney presents an appealing continuity of fun in technicolor, based upon the South American atmosphere which he and his staff surveyed during a visit to the Latin republics. Other Madison attraction is a slight contrast, "Buckskin Frontier."

 yours a month ago!

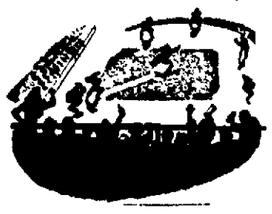
This American soldier is reading his newspaper during a lull in the fighting. The sketch was inspired by an official U.S. Signal Corps photo taken recently in Africa.

Chances are he's eating up the diamond dope that was old stuff to you a month ago—even two or three months ago. A soldier on the battlefield is like that. The longer he is away from his homeland the closer he clings to the things of his former life—such as baseball.



From all the world's fighting fronts soldiers send the same request—for MORE news, for the season's ball schedules, clippings of their favorite sports columnist, gags, cartoons—anything for a laugh and a boost in spirit. And when they get it they pass the precious news around from hand to hand till it's worn out.

It's never enough—and it can't be. After all, a soldier doesn't expect to have today's newspaper delivered to his foxhole.

You, on the home front, are luckier, and next time you pick up your newspaper you might give that a thought—in deference to the boy pictured above.

AXIS LAUNCHES COUNTER BLOWS NEAR AUGUSTA

British Repel Attack, Yanks Capture Airdrome and Italian General.

ed that parachute troops on Catania plain had been wiped out and that "stubborn enemy attacks" had been halted. In less confident tone, however, the Vichy radio called the situation "extremely serious" and said strong British forces were "debouching in masses" upon the flatlands west of Catania.

A possibly decisive battle appeared shaping up on the Catania plain as crack British troops pounded closer to the seaport of Catania—halfway toward the goal of Messina—and American soldiers approached the plain from the southwest.

American troops have captured eight enemy airdromes.

Front dispatches said 60-ton German Tiger tanks have been thrown into battle, with a number destroyed.

Twelve thousand Axis prisoners have been taken, Allied headquarters said, but news from the battle area said enemy resistance was stiffening in this sixth day of invasion.

Associated Press Correspondent Paul Kern Lee, reporting from a British cruiser in Catania bay, said there was stubborn Axis defense at Lentini and Carlentini, villages on the path to Catania, but that naval shellings and airborne troops were expected to clean up the area soon.

Lee said the crack Nazi Hermann Goering division — whose first counter-attack was beaten off by Americans Sunday—had dug in on the Catania plain.

The Allied aid offensive kept pounding Axis defenses, and U. S. Liberators from the Middle East staged another daylight raid yesterday on Messina, ferry terminal of Sicily, to hit shipping and rail facilities there. San Giovanni across the strait in Italy also was struck.

Aiming tremendous knockout blows at Messina—Sicilian ferry terminus for reinforcements from the mainland—hundreds of bombers from northwest African and Middle East bases poured explosive and incendiary bombs upon shipping and railway facilities yesterday. U. S. Liberators from the Middle East joined in the great assault.

Elsewhere in Sicily, aerial attacks hammered enemy communications and protected Allied ground troops. Sicilian air bases are in use.

Trade Blows With Nazis at Belgorod

MOSCOW — (AP) — Counter-attacking Soviet tanks, supported by mobile artillery, traded blows with German tank and infantry forces in the Belgorod sector of the Russian front yesterday with increasing local successes for the Russians, frontline dispatches said today.

The Russians said they had beaten off stubborn attacks which the Germans launched almost incessantly in some sectors around Belgorod and had recaptured several villages as their counter-blows got under way.

For the second successive day, meanwhile, the Nazi attack stalled at the northern end of the 200-mile Orel-Kursk-Belgorod front along which the Germans launched their offensive 11 days ago. As the midnight Soviet communique expressed it, the Germans 'did not undertake any attacks' in the Orel-Kursk sector yesterday.

(German broadcasts recorded in London said the Russians themselves were attacking near Orel and had broken through the Nazi lines east and north of the city by "sheer weight of numbers." The Russians later were driven back and the gaps sealed, the broadcast said.)

Rome Says 402 Dead After Turin Raid

The Rome radio, in a broadcast recorded by the Associated Press, quoted the Italian communique today as saying 402 persons were killed and 61 injured in Monday night's raid on Turin, in northwestern Italy, by RAF home-based bombers. The city is without electric power and is suffering a severe shortage of drinking water, private advices from Italy declared. The advices also reported that typhus had broken out in the city.

Hitler Leaves His Stalled Eastern Army

LONDON — (AP) — A foreign diplomatic source reported today that Adolf Hitler, after having commanded the early phases of the latest German offensive in the Belgorod-Orel sector, had relinquished control of the stalled attack and had returned to Berlin for conferences with his military staff.

Planes Roar To Attack on Europe

FOLKESTONE, England — (AP) — Great formations of Allied planes, believed to include bombers, streamed across the English channel late today in the direction of northern France.

Observers reported counting a large number of RAF fighters in one escorting formation.

Anti-aircraft gunfire on the continent to the right of Boulogne and more in the direction of Le Touquet could be seen from the English coast.

ner, C. H. Henkel, W. F. Black, R. E. Hutchison, all attorneys, and Municipal Judge H. H. Schettler.

Huston added that it was pretty well established that the city could safely finance the cost of the properties involved and that the committee would advise council as to the funds it thought could be transferred for this purpose and the amount of bonds that could be issued without asking approval of the voters.

The committee, he explained, would also determine the legal procedure to be followed by council in obtaining the land. He indicated that condemnation proceeding would be necessary.

He also pointed out that council had not yet signified its willingness to sponsor the project and expressed the belief that some action should be taken by that body to sanction the move.

A. H. Moellenkamp, regional planning supervisor for the state highway department, who was given preliminary plans of the project yesterday by CCA engineers said that a request had been forwarded to the central planning office in Columbus for authorization to re-locate state route 13.

Moellenkamp indicated that re-location of the highway would probably be to the west of the present road, paralleling the Pennsylvania railroad and skirting the western limits of the proposed site.

Letters prepared by James R. Harrington, port manager, were sent to the American Telephone and Telegraph company, the Mansfield Telephone company and the Ohio Public Service company, over the mayor's signature, asking co-operation in removal of power lines and telephone lines and cables.

Accompanying the communications were drawings of the proposed field layout prepared by Harrington.

The letters asked for speedy removal of the lines and suggested that they be laid underground through the airport property.

DEMPSEY GIVEN GIRLS' CUSTODY

Ex-Wife Gets Right to Visit Two Daughters.

NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y.—(U.P.)—Lieut. Comdr. William H. (Jack) Dempsey today was awarded custody of his daughters, Barbara and Joan.

Supreme Court Referee J. Addison Young, who last week granted Dempsey a divorce from his showgirl wife, Hannah Williams Dempsey, on the grounds of adultery, awarded the former heavyweight champion custody of the children.

Mrs. Dempsey was given the right to visit the girls.

RECRUITER HERE

Interviews Applicants For Seabees at Postoffice.

Lieut. W. W. Fleming, recruiting officer for the Seabees, was at the Mansfield recruiting station today to interview applicants.

Lieut. Fleming said more trained workers skilled in various construction trades are needed.

Skilled workers between the ages of 18 and 38 can volunteer under a new plan known as "voluntary induction." Men who are 17 or between 38 and 50 can join by voluntary enlistment.

Lieut. Fleming will be in Mansfield every three weeks. Those desiring information can receive it at the recruiting station, second floor of the postoffice building.

Shelby Blackout Violator Ordered To Serve Sentence

SHELBY — Paul Riley of Shelby, who had a 30-day jail sentence suspended by Mayor W. R. Morris after breaking black out regulations during an air raid test here earlier this year, today had the suspension revoked after breaking parole.

The sentence had been suspended by Mayor Morris when Riley said he would enlist in the army. He was turned down for the armed forces during the physical examinations. He was then placed on parole to Police Chief Leroy Coffee for a six-month period.

This week a neighbor filed charges of disorderly conduct against Riley and police said he had failed to report to the parole officer.

'E' Flag Unfurled, It's Back To Work for Westinghouse

the assembled throng of workers, "Do not be deluded by the thought that time is on our side. We cannot coast along to victory. There is no time for relaxation or for the pleasant pursuits of peace. There is time only for war and the struggle for victory.

"Our production offensive is no one-man job. It must be done by teamwork. Teamwork between labor and management—between industry and government. Each job is a link in a chain. If some worker along the vast production line slackens his effort, the entire chain is weakened. If, in some plant elsewhere in America, a solitary workman falls down on the job or fails to meet a schedule, you may be thrown off your stride. Your production may falter. Likewise, if you falter for any reason, some man may die needlessly, or some battle may be lost, for lack of a vital piece of equipment."

J. H. Ashbaugh, manager of the appliance division, opened the presentation ceremony, introducing Milton J. Cross, nationally-known radio announcer, who acted as master of ceremonies, and Major John J. Price, of Fort Hayes, at Columbus pronounced the invocation.

After Gen. Hanley presented the "E" pennant, Commander W. P. Bacon, United States Navy, presented the "E" pins to five workers, each of whom owned an outstanding record of service with the company. Bacon spoke briefly, telling the workers that their record constituted "an enduring contribution to the immortality of freedom."

As he presented the pins to the five workers on the platform, the 4,000 assembled before him, opened envelopes and fastened their own pins in place.

Van Derau accepted the pennant on behalf of the company, and Joseph T. Hawkins, president of Local 711, accepted the pins on behalf of the employes.

Van Derau recounted the difficulties of the conversion period asserting that while the task was a difficult one, it was one "filled with pleasant memories." Lauding the plant's employes for their zeal, he said,

"This flag is ours today only because you have done your job so willingly and so well."

Hawkins, in accepting the pins on behalf of the employes, promised that the workers would continue to put forth their best efforts.

"To those in the armed forces whom we promised when they left here that we would do our utmost, we have proved today, and we will continue to prove to the rest of the world that we are doing our bit," Hawkins said.

The "E" award was the climax of a busy day at the Westinghouse plant, during which army and navy officials and visiting newsmen and guests were conducted on tours of the plant and shown some of the great variety of war products being produced at the plant—ranging from the now-famous gyro stabilizer for tank guns to armor-piercing shot and airplane parts and binoculars.

In the binocular department, the visitors were shown an automatic tool that performs 28 jobs and plays a vital role in the mass production of binoculars. Every hour this specially-tooled automatic screw machine produces 60 parts so intricate in shape that 28 different dimensions are created and checked for accuracy to seven-tenths of a thousandth of an inch.

After these parts are inspected, they move to a big room in which the atmosphere is controlled by an electric device that prevents air conditioners and cleaned by dust and lint from entering the delicate works of binoculars. Many of the workers who assemble the parts are women who wear freshly starched white uniforms and shun facial make-up because even a speck of powder on the inside surface of a glass lens would cause a pair of binoculars to be rejected.

Another part of the inspection tour was a visit in the thermostat section. Here the visitors saw workers producing thousands of little metal disks—the gadgets which used to control the temperature of milady's electric iron, but today serve as sky firemen ready to help put out blazes in Uncle Sam's warplanes.

Attached to motors and at other strategic parts of combat planes, these thermostats operate on the same principle as automatic sprinkler systems used in factories and office buildings.

BRIGHT FUTURE SEEN FOR PLANT

Top Westinghouse Officials Say Post-War Employment May Show Increase.

present rates, or better, was the anticipated post-war demand for electric appliances.

"We see a great demand for appliances such as we make in the post-war period," Ashbaugh said. "For instance, our washing machine—the Laundromat—is expected to be one of our most popular products. Before the war, we were able to introduce it in only a small portion of the country. We expect it to be one of our post-war leaders."

Backing that statement, Robertson then pointed out that if the appliance business was as good as expected, employment would necessarily remain at a high mark.

"We expect to be able to maintain employment after the war at the present rate," Robertson said, "and we hope to be able to increase it after the period of transition from war to peace-time products."

Both of them pointed out that the re-conversion to peace-time products would be easier than the conversion to war work.

"We have the tools and dies," Ashbaugh explained, "so all we will have to do is put them back in place. We will not have the problem of training our workers for their jobs, because they will be jobs at which they are experienced. If there is any problem at all, it will be that of obtaining materials for manufacturing our ordinary products."

Newcomb warned against expecting drastic changes in the appearance or performance of electric appliances.

"There wasn't anything wrong with electric appliances such as we made before the war" Newcomb declared, "and there isn't any reason to expect sharp changes in them. There has been talk about how different post-war products would be, but that talk has come from designers and dreamers—certainly not from the people who will have to manufacture them.

"Talk of such changes, which actually have no foundation, can be dangerous. When we go back to peace-time products, we may run into the problem of people refusing to buy them because they want to wait for that new product they've heard about. Actually there isn't any such product planned," Newcomb said.

Robertson revealed that Westinghouse had been following a policy of voluntary contract re-negotiation with the government on its war contracts, even before the re-negotiation law was passed.

"We never felt that we should make unconscionable profits at the expense of the government," Robertson said, "so when we found that we were able to make war materials at less cost than specified in the contract, we turned the money back to the government. On a great many things, there was no way to know how much an article would cost, because we had never made them before, and had no experience on their cost.

"Take a navy gun mount that we made in another plant for an instance. The contract price was about $27,000 per unit. Yet we found, after we made a quantity of them that we could make them for about half that sum. So we voluntarily re-negotiated the contract. Last year, in all, we returned to the government about 53 million dollars under the re-negotiation plan."

GREYHOUND MAY BUY BUS LINES

Make Bid For Penn-Ohio Coach Franchise of $2,000,000.

CLEVELAND —(INS)— The Penn-Ohio Coach Lines Co., one of the largest bus operators in Ohio, may be sold to the Pennsylvania Greyhound Lines at a cost of slightly under $2,000,000, it was reported today.

S. R. Sundstrom, Greyhound president, said his company has entered a bid for the other line. Penn-Ohio provides one of the principal commuter services out of Cleveland operates lines to Youngstown, Warren, Akron, Canton, Kent, Ravenna, Salem, East Liverpool, Steubenville, Cambridge and Marietta, as well as to Wheeling, W. Va., and several Pennsylvania points.

Sundstrom pointed out that if his firm obtained Penn-Ohio, Greyhound could cut out duplicate lines and thus save mileage.

CONSTIPATED?

Don't Force! Don't Strain! Thus Risking Hemorrhoids!

Here's one right and proper way to moisten hard dry passages and secure more gentle "easy" movements. 15 minutes before breakfast, drink a glass of hot water to which one teaspoonful of Kruschen Salts has been added. While you are eating breakfast the hot water and Kruschen will be feeding moisture to those hard, dry passages. They become soft, moist, easier to expel. No need to strain and thus risk painful rectal irritation. Usually within 30 minutes wastes are expelled smoothly and gently. You feel gloriously fresh again.

Take only as directed. Try Kruschen for 5 days for you can so regulate the dose as to bring about that "easy" movement such as you have long desired. Don't delay—you can get Kruschen Salts at any drug store. Muir's Cut Rate Drug Store.

YANKS, AUSSIES CLOSE IN FOR KUBO BATTLE

Ready To Strike Position In Advance of Salamaua as Munda Drive Continues.

with the Japanese north of Salus lake, which is only seven miles south of Salamaua, the center of enemy strength in New Guinea.

The pattern of extermination now launched by the Allies at Mubo followed closely that already unfolding before the Japanese airbase of Munda, on New Georgia island in the central Solomons.

Both had their precedents in the campaigns of last winter to eliminate the enemy from Buna, New Guinea, and from Guadalcanal. The Munda action, at least, had even greater hopes for quick success.

The Japanese defenders of Buna, who faced a less formidable American air force, prolonged the fight with men and supplies sneaked to them at night on coastal barges. The enemy tried the barge method yesterday in the Munda sector, with dire results.

Alert Mitchell bombers spotted two big enemy barges above Munda in the Blackett strait. Their bombs destroyed them. North of there off Vella Lavella island, Mitchells also sank an enemy cargo boat.

The American airforce gave the bomb-pitted enemy fields of the northern Solomons no chance to get back in shape to come to Munda's aid. Liberators and Flying Fortresses started new fires on airdromes at Buka, Kahili and Ballale.

Yank Bombers Sink Three Jap Vessels

UNITED STATES NAVY BOMBER HEADQUARTERS IN CHINA, July 12—(Delayed) —(AP)— Two waves of American Liberators led by Majors Henry G Brady, jr., 25, of Columbia, S C., and Walter S. Beat 24 of St. Petersburg Fla., struck the heaviest blow of the war against Japanese shipping today when they sank three enemy vessels, aggregating 14,000 tons, at Hongay and Campha ports.

In addition, the Liberators in Brady's wave destroyed the main power plant at Hangay, 30 miles northeast of Haiphong, then dived to an altitude of only 25 feet and strafed to pieces a Japanese seaplane tied up at the Hongay dock.

All the Liberators and their crews returned. No enemy fighters showed up.

Time Shortens For Attack on Kiska

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The time for an American offensive against the Japanese base on Kiska island in the North Pacific is growing short. Responsible opinion here is that if the strategetic base is to be recaptured from the enemy this year weather conditions make it essential that operations begin as soon as possible.

An amphibious attack on Kiska, where the Japanese have elaborate defense installations, an unfinished airfield and a force estimated as high as 10,000 men, would be a logical follow up to the conquest of Attu island, completed a month and a half ago. But whether and when it will be made is a high command secret which the bomb-battered outflanked Kiska garrison may try to figure out as best it can.

The basic elements with which the American commanders have to work have been put on the record, however, and in the absence of more recent official information on the subject are arousing intense speculation here.

Possibly the most important of these is the weather, which in the Aleutians area is never good and at this season is steadily going from bad to worse. Presumably any campaign for this year would be planned with a view to smashing Japanese resistance before October sleet storms and blizzards.

The battle of Attu required about three weeks begining on May 11. The enemy force there numbered about 3,000 men and defenses were not nearly so well developed as on Kiska.

Teh alternative to an attack this year is to let the Japanese suffer the ravages of another rough Aleutians winter with few if any supplies reaching them.

Major General Thomas J Hanley gave the ceremony that "human" touch when he paid special tribute to his 84-year-old father, T. J. Hanley of Mansfield, who was seated in one of the places of honor on the platform.

A general smile from the audience put the stamp of approval on an act which brought the ceremony down from the platform to every worker and every guest.

Production in action was represented in the five Grumann Corsairs which flew over the assembled crowd immediately before the ceremony. Parts for these carrier-based Navy fighter planes are made in the aircraft division of the Mansfield plant. The Corsair, fastest Navy plane, is made at Goodyear Aircraft company.

The five planes zooming overhead afforded the crowd some humor as one of the planes lagged behind out of formation like an afterthought.

The fair weather that had been hoped for that the day dawned dark and rainy was more than which had been hoped for. The blazing sun made the audience grateful for a perfectly timed and smooth running ceremony which lasted only a fraction of a minute over the scheduled 31 minutes.

* * *

Today the employes had their "E" pins as souvenirs of the occasion while everyone else had a sunburn as a reminder.

* * *

The well-trained Local 711 band under the direction of Frank Dekrell received praise from the audience. The musicians looking smart in their maroon and gray uniforms played at the outset and close of the ceremony.

* * *

Patriotic red, white, and blue bordered with gold stars and watched over by two gold eagles formed the backdrop for the colorful ceremony.

* * *

Many of the guests felt they should give their chairs to the employes who stood during the ceremony. They thought the place of honor belonged to the men and women whose efforts earned the coveted production award.

* * *

Fitting close to the ceremony was the group singing of the national anthem led by the Local 711 choir which performed with patriotic songs preceding the presentation of colors by the Coast Guard color guard from Cleveland.

J. A. C. MAPPING YOUTH CENTER

Takes Up Challenge Resulting From Juvenile Problem; Plans To Speed Program.

the teen-age members will be taken, the president said.

"We plan to operate a non-profit organiaztion and would like to keep the cost to the member down to a minimum," he said.

To keep the member cost down, some additional financing will be needed and Balyeat indicated that contributions from organizations or individuals interested in the juvenile problem would be highly acceptable for this purpose.

"The recreation center though sponsored by the J. A. C. will belong essentially to the youngsters and to Mansfield so we would like to have all interested persons share in the project."

Tenative plans for the center, which the association hopes to have in operation before school opens this fall, include a room for dancing with a juke box and a snack bar where sandwiches and soft drinks wil be served. Policy for the operation of the center will be in the hands of a group of high school students and the J. A. C. board of directors.

Taking advantage of a meeting of state Junior Chamber of Commerce leaders in Columbus Sunday, Mansfield J. A. C. officers wilwl discuss the operation of similar projects in Ashland, Lorain, and Norwalk with the heads of organizations in these cities.

Mansfield's growing juvenile delinquency problem was brought sharply into focus this week when seven youths between the ages of 13 and 17 were arraigned in juvenile court for intoxication and disorderly conduct.

Though the recreation center plan has been in the verbal stage for a number of years, only the recent serious situation has brought action.

SOLDIER LABOR

Army Moves War Supplies When Longshoremen Walk Out.

BOSTON —(INS)— Soldier labor battalions of the Boston army base moved on to the docks today to move critical war cargo if 1500 striking longshoremen -- virtually the entire port of Boston force—failed to heed instructions from their national union to return to work.

The soldiers, trained to handle cargoes, took the strikers' places yesterday and loaded ships for war zones when the longshoremen walked out in protest over delays in wage payments.

First Step On Road To Victory

A FEW WORDS from the address given yesterday afternoon by Major General Thomas J. Hanley, jr., in presenting the Army-Navy "E" pennant to Westinghouse, deserve thought by every worker in every war industry in America.

"The first step on the road to victory is taken in plants like this," he said, and in pondering those words every war worker should find inspiration for the utmost effort to maintain and increase production of the military equipment and supplies of all kinds that must be made available to the nation's fighting forces all over the world.

"How soon America will reach the end of that road," General Hanley added, "depends largely on how well you maintain the production record you have established here."

While these words were directed specifically to the thousands of employes of Westinghouse who were being honored on this occasion, they apply with no less force to other thousands of industrial workers in Mansfield and to millions throughout the country—for each has a share in the responsibility of carrying on the tremendous production job, without which men on the fighting lines would be powerless to carry on the war.

Importance of the individual was strongly stressed by General Hanley when he said: "Each job is a link in a chain. If some worker along that vast line slackens his effort the entire chain is weakened. If, in some plant elsewhere in America, a solitary workman falls down on the job or fails to meet a schedule, you may be thrown off your stride—your production may falter. Likewise, if you falter for any reason, some man may die needlessly or some battle may be lost for lack of a vital piece of equipment."

While employes in industries that have already been accorded the high honor of an Army-Navy "E" award naturally feel obligated to maintain the high standards required to gain this distinguished recognition, no less responsibility rests upon employes and management of other industries—the 98 per cent in the country that have not yet measured up to requirements for the "E" award—to do everything in their power to advance the national war program.

Prime factors in winning the Army-Navy "E" award are quality and quantity of production. Also considered are: overcoming of production obstacles; avoidance of stoppages; record of absenteeism; maintenance of fair labor standards; training of employes; effective management; record on accidents, health, sanitation and plant protection, and utilization of sub-contracting facilities.

The award is for past performance, covering a six-months period. To be retained it is necessary that the standards by which it was won be maintained.

Congratulations to the men and women of Westinghouse on the patriotic and capable service which brought this added honor to Mansfield's industrial family.

The question naturally arises, "Which will be next among Mansfield industries to qualify for an Army-Navy E?"

Eisenhower's Faith Was Justified

GEN. DWIGHT D. EISENHOWER is not only a brilliant general, but he has the makings of a good journalist. He showed that when several weeks before the assault on Sicily, he called in the news men and told them exactly what he was going to do.

That was a daring revelation, by the usual standards. He was giving non-military men a secret on which depended the success of that great enterprise. If one correspondent in the whole group were to "jump the gun" the whole campaign might be wrecked. It seems doubtful whether so frank a revelation of such big news was ever granted before.

But of course those war correspondents kept faith. They didn't even pass the word to their own papers in confidence. So when the zero hour came, and Sicily blew up in Mussolini's face, their editors were as much surprised as anybody. But in the meantime the news men had the benefit of understanding the strategy, knowing just when the invasion would come, and being ready for it. So the whole British and American press got the big story covered promptly, instead of taking days to round it up.

American Boys Over Sicily

MANY an American boy must be blinking his eyes and pinching himself lately, to figure out whether what he's doing is real, or a weird dream. Fancy a lad only a year or so out of high school or his freshman year in college, suddenly finding himself on the other side of the world, in the middle of the night, operating an army plane over Sicily, dropping bombs or fighting Germans and Italians in the clouds, while all the air is filled with exploding fireworks as if it were a tremendous Fourth of July.

The scene must be entrancing but also very terrible. Thoughts and emotions aroused, keen as they are, may never be told. For air men are modest, and not very communicative about such matters.

Their general tendency is to hope for the best, expect the worst, and try not to be afraid. Fearlessness is promoted by the fact that, once committed to battle, they're usually too busy to be very conscious of their feelings.

The Town That Took a Vacation

STAFFORD SPRINGS, Conn., population 3,400, must be a neighborly place. On July 6 the whole town started on a week's vacation with pay. Union contracts in the textile mills called for such a vacation, and the people decided that it would be a chummy thing for everybody to take it together. There were parades, block dancing, sport programs and bond-selling to start off the holiday period, and other events, some planned and others spontaneous, through the week. It was said to be the first time in 224 years—since the first woolen mill was opened there—that nobody was working.

Reports indicate that the people had a lot of fun. And it wouldn't be surprising if some other towns follow the example.

The Detroit News, presumably after a check-up, concludes that "no one with $10 worth of property is found rioting in the streets."

Now it's the people with "fixed incomes" who are in a fix.

GETTING BACK INTO THE OLD RUT AGAIN

Historic Plain of Catania May Again Be Scene of Great Battle

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

EVENTS are milling about so swiftly in Sicily that he who makes forecasts is bullying his luck, but it looks now as though the broad plain of Catania—one of the battlegrounds of the ages—may continue its old role and become the scene of the decisive engagement in the fight for Sicily.

This fertile granary, which crowds with daring insolence against the volcanic foothills of grumbling Etna, about halfway along the eastern coast of the island, lies athwart the route which the Allied forces on the east wing are pursuing northwards towards the strategic port of Messina. The Axis well may make its first big show of resistance here. The Catanian plain affords the best field for the operation of mechanized forces in this generally mountainous island, and tank divisions presumably will be used in strength by both Allies and Axis.

The port of Catania on the edge of the plain is Sicily's second largest city, with a population of a quarter million. In its some 2,700 years of adventure it has been the center of many wars. It has been destroyed, and has risen again from its own ruins, so often that it's hard to keep the count—not to mention the assaults from erupting Etna and earthquakes.

Despite its varied experience of hard knocks, however, Catania probably never was hit harder than it will be if it tries to resist the march of General Montgomery, with his famous British Eighth army and hard-boiled Canadians. Perhaps the already bomb-battered city will remain passive while the decision is sought on the neighboring plain.

Catania is 59 miles by rail south of Messina, the all-important port which is the island's railhead for the mainland's railroads. Trains are ferried across the narrow strait of Messina, thus maintaining a vital communication.

Isolating of Sicily from the Italian peninsula demands that Messina be captured at the earliest possible moment. This will leave the Axis forces on the island cut off from supplies and reinforcements, save for the few which might be moved by air.

Allied progress northward should be helped vastly by capture of the great seaport of Augusta which lies between Syracuse and Catania. Augusta's harbor is one of the best in the Mediterranean and is a godsend to the Allies, who have needed more deep-water harborage for the unloading of the expeditionary forces and equipment from the vast armada of expeditionary ships.

ANOTHER important development is the capture of Floridia, Palazzolo and Ragusa. These places lie across the tip of the southeastern peninsula astride which the Allied forces are forging forward. The significance of these captures is that they are communications centers. Ragusa is a strategic point for both railway and highways. If you will look at your maps you will see what this involves.

It means that the American and other Allied troops on the west arm of the peninsula, and Montgomery's forces on the eastern coast, are in process of establishing communications across the tip of the peninsula for fast movement of men, equipment and supplies. This brilliant stroke also divides enemy contingents in that area.

Air power continues to play its major part magnificently. Axis communications are being neutralized and the defending airfleet is being smothered.

White Foxgloves

HARD to read the mail these days. All those hundreds of discouraged letters. Weary, resentful humans, struggling, scrimping, wondering what it's all about, when it will end—

Here's one this morning. A brave, intelligent spirit drove that rebellious pen—

"I'm willing to look for the silver lining in any cloud but is there any silver lining to this one? What's the use of all this suffering and humiliation? Maybe some needed to learn to work and save but we didn't. For ten years my husband and I have lived thrifty, industrious lives. We never loafed or wasted. We were proud and happy and now — this. Everything we saved has gone. We are dressing like beggars, living from hand to mouth. They say there's 'blessing in adversity' but where is the blessing in this?"

I wonder. I've asked that plenty of times myself. Tramping hot pavements in ragged shoes, looking through restaurant windows at food I could not buy, until I drooled with nausea — I've asked that same question. Could any blessing come out of my adversity? I didn't believe it. Yet now, looking back—

I keep thinking about that story my friend told me about her night trip along Puget Sound. She had been automobiling, through lazy June days, up and down the country roads of Oregon. Someone told her about a garden. No stopping Cora, if she hears about a garden. She had to see that night. Four hours off? They could make it by ten.

But the weather had taken a nasty twist. Over the horizon a storm was boiling up. The twilight went out in a sudden squawl of black rain. The night flung itself upon them like a bat. In ten minutes the road, which skirted the Sound, was a quaking smear of mud.

Below there was that vicious lisp and mumble of angry water. Now and then between a scud of cloud, they'd glimpse a twisting grayness—see a wave upflung—snatching at them. Then the blackness would shut down again. The wind would go on shoving, squatting its dead weight on the running board, plucking at the curtains. A back tire would spin off into nothingness. . . . For an instant there'd be silence, like a great cough — with the night watching and the water waiting, far below—

It was midnight before they found a farm and a sleepy frightened woman let them in through a grudging door. Garden? They'd forgotten there were such things as gardens . . . forgotten everything but that snatching terror at their heels.

Six hours' sleep and they turned back, through a morning carelessly bright as a daisy wreath. Green grass tangled in a web of silver light. Puddles, clear as bits of broken glass, cupping blueness in their black earth frame. Around the bend the tall, cool vault of forest filled with peace.

And then, ahead — beyond the great dark arch . . . swaying in the sunshine . . . mile upon mile of white foxgloves . . . tall, pale spires of blossom, ringed with yellow butterflies — with the Sound spreading its quiet heliotrope between the pale-green stems.

So THAT was what they had passed in the night! That was what lay within the sheath of darkness!

Adversity — the long, black, idiotic night of adversity—is there any profit in it?

I didn't think so when I went through it. But now and then of a sunny morning, when for awhile I come out of its gloom, I wonder.

Was there something lovely hidden in the darkness? Was it there I found a little courage . . . a little tolerance . . . a litle patience with another's pain?

Dave Boone Says:

MUSSOLINI tells his troops he is with 'em in spirit, which clinches his position as a ghost fighter. Benito's spirit could be offered for a dime today with no takers. His spirit never was much anyhow. What he depended on was chestiness, pomposity and a fair talent for yelling "Boo!"

* * *

I'll bet it cheered American boys to know that Syracuse was captured. It's a long time since our fighters abroad have struck a city they could pronounce. And that had a familiar American sound. You can't convince a lot of jeep drivers that the American Syracuse was named after the Sicilian one instead of the Sicilians swiping it from New York.

* * *

With our boys doing such heroic and vital deeds at the front it's a little sickening to have to note such silly stuff as the home front nonsense about not permitting folks to slaughter a cow, pig or lamb they may have raised in their own yard. And a government agent says that if chickens are rationed you can't raise 'em and wring one's neck now and then.

Army Air Forces Express Belief They Can Bomb Italy Out of War

WASHINGTON—A new phrase has developed among war department strategists in mapping out operations in Sicily and the Mediterranean. It is "classical warfare."

The army air forces have coined the phrase in their desire to throw cold water on the "classical" foot-soldier methods of the older services of the army, and to push ahead with all-out air attacks. Classical warfare, they say, is like studying Greek and Latin in a day when we need Spanish, Russian and French.

This debate began before the landing in Sicily, and continues now regarding future possible operations in Sardinia, Corsica and Italy itself.

Want to Move Fast.

THE METHOD used in invading Sicily was a compromise among land, air and naval elements, resulting in the "peculiar amphibious operations" Churchill talked about. But the Air Forces believe they can move even faster and more effectively in conquering other parts of Italy if they don't have to be tied down by classical warfare.

For instance, with bases in Sicily, army airmen think they can so pulverize the industrial plants of northern Italy that they can bomb that country out of the war without waiting for huge landing operations to come up and help them.

Then with air bases in northern Italy, they are within range of the hidden synthetic gasoline factories which Hitler has moved into Austria and Czechoslovakia. Thus, step by step, the air forces believe they can knock out the enemy without resorting to classical warfare.

* * *

Axis Planes Knocked Out.

HERE is one significant thing army airmen point to. During the ten days just before we invaded Sicily the Nazis had been sending a lot of new planes into Sicily and southern Italy.

But after one day of fresh Axis air strength, which was heavily damaged by U. S. planes, there followed a day or two of weak resistance. In other words, Axis planes were knocked out and had to wait for reinforcements. These reinforcements kept coming up until about two days before the invasion, after which Axis air resistance was light.

Cox the Fox.

THE Cox committee investigating the Federal Communications commission, having set one record for violating the American spirit of fair play, now is out to beat its own record.

First, its chairman, Representative Eugene Cox of Georgia, having been accused of illegally taking a $2,500 lobbying fee, is now placed in the unique position of sitting in judgment on his accusers—the FCC.

The Georgia congressman at one time had so many relatives on the government payroll that the total take of himself and family was $56,500. This is nearly four times greater than the salary of the vice president, nearly three times the salary of Chief Justice Stone. Nevertheless, when the FCC sent the matter of Cox's alleged lobbying fee to the justice department for criminal prosecution, Cox flew into a tantrum and started a congressional probe of his accusers.

Now, his committee has gone one step further and has devised a system of trying to shut up any rebuttal from the Federal Communications commission, so that only one side can be heard. (It might be a good idea for the public to remember this in reading news about the FCC investigation.)

* * *

How to Operate.

AUTHOR of the strategy of letting only one side of the news pictures get to the reading public is Robert Humphreys of International News Service, acting as adviser to the Cox committee. Humphreys wrote the memo for the committee, which was circulated to every member by its counsel Eugene L. Garey.

Salient portions of the memo follow:

"Decide what you want the newspapers to hit hardest and then shape each hearing so that the main point becomes the vortex of the testimony. Once that vortex is reached, adjourn.

"Do not permit distractions to occur, such as extraneous fusses with would-be witnesses, which might provide news that would bury the testimony which you want featured.

"Do not space hearings more than 24 or 48 hours apart when on a controversial subject. This gives the opposition too much opportunity to make all kinds of counter-charges and replies by issuing statements to the newspapers.

"Don't ever be afraid to recess a hearing even for five minutes, so that you keep the proceedings completely in control so far as creating news is concerned.

"And this is most important: don't let the hearings or the evidence ever descend to the plane of personal fight between the committee chairman and the head of the agency being investigated. The high plane of a duly-authorized committee of the house of representatives examining the operations of an agency of the executive branch for constructive purposes should be maintained at all costs."

Humphreys' instructions have been carefully followed. The Cox inquisitors have met for short sessions, then quickly adjourned before any member of the FCC could refute their charges.

Most congressmen — and the majority believe in fair play—are getting more and more fed up with the Cox travesty.

Here's Where You Get a Clear Idea Of Steps Leading Up to An Invasion.

ABOARD A U. S. NAVY SHIP OF THE INVASION FLEET—(By Wireless—Delayed)—When I came aboard the vessel that was to carry us through the invasion I was struck with the odd bleakness of the walls and ceilings throughout the ship.

At first I thought it was a new and very unbecoming type of interior decoration but then shortly I realized that this strange effect was merely part of the navy procedure of stripping for action. Inside our ship there were many other precautions. As you go into battle all excess rags and blankets are taken ashore or stowed away and locked up. The bunk mattresses are set on edge against the walls to act as absorbent cushions against torpedo or shell fragments. The entire crew must be fully dressed in shoes, shirts, and pants—no working in shorts or undershirts because of the danger of burns.

The Navy's traditional white hats are left below for the duration of the action. No white clothing is allowed to show on deck. Steel helmets, painted battleship gray, are worn during engagement.

Men who go on night watches are awakened 45 minutes ahead of time instead of the usual few minutes and ordered to be on deck half an hour before going on watch for it takes that long for the eyes to become accustomed to the full darkness.

All souvenir firearms are turned in and the ammunition thrown overboard. There was one locker room full of German and Italian rifles and revolvers which the sailors had gotten from frontline soldiers. Failure to throw away ammunition was a court martial offense. The officers didn't want stray bullets whizzing around in case of fire.

Food supplies were taken from their regular hampers and stored all about the ship so that our entire supply couldn't be destroyed by one hit. All movie film was taken ashore. No flashlights, even hooded ones, were allowed on deck.

Doors opening on deck have switches just the reverse of refrigerators—when you open the door the lights inside go out. All linoleum had been removed from the floors, all curtains taken down.

Because of weight limitations on the plane which brought me here I had to leave my army gas mask behind so the navy issued me a navy mask along with all the sailors before departure. They also gave me one of those bright yellow Mae West life preservers like aviators wear.

* * *

THROUGHOUT the invasion period the entire crew was on one of two statuses—either "General Quarters" or "Condition Two." General Quarters is the navy term for full alert and means everybody on full duty until the crisis ends. It may be 20 minutes or it may be 48 hours. Condition Two is half alert, four hours on, four hours off, but the off hours are spent right at your battle station. It merely gives you a little chance to relax.

Our ship is so crowded it takes three sittings in Officers' Mess to feed the men. Every bunk has two officers assigned to it, one sleeps while the other works.

The ship's officers were told the whole invasion plan in great detail just after we sailed. Charles Corte, Acme photographer who was the only other correspondent on this ship, and I also were given a detailed picture of what lay ahead. The crew was given the plan a little at a time after sailing. In addition, a mimeographed set of instructions and warnings was distributed about the ship before sailing. It ended as follows:

"This operation will be a completely offensive one. The ship will be at General Quarters or Condition Two throughout the operation. It may extend over a long period of time. Opportunities for rest will not come very often. You can be sure that you will have something to talk about when this is over. This ship must do her stuff."

* * *

THE night before we sailed the crew listened as usual to the German propaganda radio program which featured Olga, the American girl turned Nazi, who was trying to scare them, disillusion them and depress them. As usual they laughed with amusement and scorn at her childishly treasonish talk.

In a vague and indirect way, I suppose, the privilege of listening to your enemy trying to undermine you the very night before you go out to face him expresses what we are fighting for.

Swim By Moonlight

"I'LL GO along to the swimming hole tonight," I said. "The moon is up and the sky is clear and our clothes are smelly with sweat.

Few people may know that after a long hot day in the fields, a swim in the creek, with its cool scented banks of balsam and mint, is a joy that a dad and his children cannot afford to miss—at least down our way.

The elms are high, yet branches trail shelteringly across the clear stream, and long shadows play in the ripples. Silent and eerie it is, as we stand on the dew-dampened bank. No motion of leaf or stir from any treetop. The stream is quiet, for it runs deep here. Our feet feel the heads of clover in the bluegrass carpet, as we walk closer to the brink to make the first plunge.

I watch the oldest boy put his hands forward and upward, and stiffen his legs as, like a frog, he dives in with a heavy splash. I watch his white legs flex as he kicks for motion below the surface, and his young tanned body move gracefully and silently, then a sleek black head rises dripping, like some sea animal.

A second later his brother makes a similar plunge, and pops up at the edge of a rooty bank. The two littler ones, not swimming yet, lie flat in the soft loose sand in the shallows, with water just deep enough to cover them. They splash and throw sprays into each other's faces, until the youngest cries out with anger and fear and runs out.

I do not plunge as the boys did, but wade in deeper and deeper until the water is over my shoulders. The two boy swimmers challenge me to a dunking—if possible. (Such a challenge does not offend me—who was reared a Dunkard.)

Their teamwork is good. One dives beneath and pushes my knees behind, the other shoves me backward. Sometimes I fall, and that is a grand climax.

For an hour or so we plunge and splash and frolic. The tired feeling has gone. It seems we have left it there, in the fresh flowing stream behind us. The trek home is short, the moon is still bright and the large stars twinkle and shine. Our bodies feel cool and refreshed. Fireflies quiver and dance along the swamp in the meadow.

Here are memories that will live, far into the future. Here is joy that is relayed on, like sweet music of childhood.

UTAH BANKERS DON OVERALLS TO SAVE CROPS FOR VICTORY

(By International News Service)

OGDEN, Utah — Bankers in overalls are no uncommon sight around Ogden nowadays.

It's all a part of the "Save-the-Crops-for-Victory" program, devised by Ogdenites to overcome a labor shortage which threatened loss of fruit and vegetable crops or more than 80,000 acres in this rich agricultural area.

Most of the workers who ordinarily attend to the harvesting, can manufacturing and canning of the crops are now in the armed services with the result that labor shortages of approximately 3,000 in the fields and 2,000 in the factories was imminent.

Adopting as their slogan Governor Herbert B. Maw's ringing declaration, "Our boys in uniform can't eat courage," citizens staged a rally and began mobilization of a crop corps to assist the U. S. Employment Service in securing full or part-time volunteers.

Today, the roster of volunteers includes the names of lawyers and other professional men, business executives, club and society women, debutantes, high school students and, in fact, men and women from every walk of life.

A deaf mute, who said in sign language, "Put me where I can help most," works side by side with the daughter of a leading industrialist in a can manufacturing plant. Sub-debs daily wash mountains of dishes in the cafeteria of one of the largest canning plants.

To spur friendly rivalry among civic organizations, the American Can company offered a trophy to the club rolling up the largest number of volunteer man-hours on a membership basis. More than 50 per cent of the membership of the Industrial club has volunteered, and Kiwanians, Rotarians and other civic club members are contributing hundreds of leisure-time hours.

Responding to the appeal of Mrs. William J. Rackham, president of the Ogden Federation of Women's clubs, clubwomen have turned out in large numbers. Many have formed victory shifts and pledged sufficient hours to make up a full day on a "share" plan.

Rogers films the delicate urological operations for which Dr. Elmer Hess at St. Vincent's is famous. Besides these pictures, he has made films for Dr. Ray Luke as the doctor nailed a fractured hip and a picture showing the complete story of the plasma blood bank for Dr. K. L. Burt.

The more popular wines pressed in this state are concord, claret, burgundy, catawba and sauterne, among the dry wines; with sweet wine lists including port, sherry, muscatel, sweet catawba and tokay.

90-Year-Old Bootblack Makes Saving His Hobby.

PORTLAND, Ore. — (INS) — Freedom has real meaning for Tom Howell, 90-year-old colored bootblack.

For Tom, who was born a slave, makes buying war bonds his hobby. He admits that it "isn't easy, saving all my money, but I got to do what I can."

The aged bootblack, who has had his stand in a Portland office building since 1914, has two special reasons for war bond purchases. One of his sons, a lieutenant, is in an army hospital in Australia with an arm blown off. The other, a captain, is in Walter Reed hospital in Washington, D. C., with a hole in his head received in North Africa.

"The only way we can win it is by getting more stuff over there," Tom explained.

Jap Youths Hurt In Rioting

These two Japanese-American youths were among the four wounded in a clash with a group of sailors in Chicago. The fighting began, it was reported, when one of the Japanese, recently released from a relocation camp, cursed a man in naval uniform. Frank Hokamura, shown top, is said to be in a critical condition from knife wounds in back and left side. James Ishibashi, lower photo, is shown receiving treatment for stab wounds in the stomach.

THE DAVIDS HAVE IT

Rudisill, jr., constitute five-sevenths of the male membership of St. John's church choir. Back of the choir loft is a large memorial window reading: "In memory of David Mauney." Your gasoline ration book TELLS YOU WHEN IT'S time to change your oil!

EVEN though your driving is cut to the bone, there's no mystery about oil-change time!

Every time you finish a page in your gasoline ration book, it's time to change your oil—for two big reasons!

Reason No. 1

Even with reduced driving, your oil is constantly exposed to impurities, dust and other abrasives carried through the air—and, at the same time, to the deteriorating effects of partially burned fuel particles!

Reason No. 2

With today's short trips at lower driving speeds, your engine does not get hot enough to "cook-off" water formed by combustion and condensation. This water accumulates in your crankcase and further contaminates your oil.

SO BE ON THE SAFE SIDE. WHEN YOU USE YOUR LAST NO. 6 COUPON THAT'S YOUR REMINDER TO CHANGE YOUR OIL!

SHELL

GROUND CREW SERVICE

Put your car in the hands of any Shell Dealer displaying Ground Crew Wings. "Ground Crew" Service is an essential war service designed to help your car outlast the duration. Patterned after the rigid maintenance routine of the U. S. Army Air Forces, it treats your car like a plane!

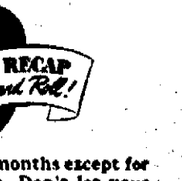
Remember—

a complete Shellubrication job can be done at the same time your Shell Dealer is changing your oil. Shellubrication means the right amount of the right Shell lubricants in the right places. You get a written guarantee with every job.

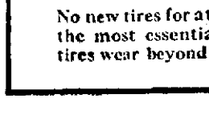
COMPLETE LUBRICATION of all moving parts with fresh Shell Lubricants. Inspection of transmission and differential lubricant levels.

BATTERY CHECK—Especially important now, as reduced driving may have allowed strength to fall below normal.

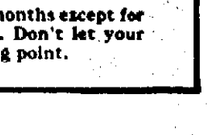
RADIATOR CHECK—Inspection of all cooling-system hose connections.



SPARKPLUG CHECK—Cleaning and adjusting if necessary. Dirty plugs can waste up to 10% of your gasoline.



CLEANING of all windows and interior of car. Inspection of fan belts, lights and other motor accessories.



TIRE CHECK—Inspection, correct inflation, switching if needed—the tire service you need to help guard America's mileage.

No new tires for at least 9 months except for the most essential drivers. Don't let your tires wear beyond recapping point.

A Little Bit Of YOU . . . Will Help Save ALL OF HIM!

BY ALL the rules of warfare, this bullet-ridden Marine would soon be dead. But brave doctors and generous civilians have made other rules.

Even before this soldier can be taken to the dressing station, his face will be ashen gray; he will be weak from shock and loss of blood. He needs help quickly if his life is to be saved.

Back at the dressing station a doctor mixes a substance like sawdust with distilled water and deftly injects the fluid into the wounded man's veins. Almost immediately color again appears in the face; he is definitely started on the road to recovery.

What is this strange "sawdust" with such amazing and life-giving properties? It is a blood plasma, properly processed, given by a Mansfield business man, a Shelby farmer, perhaps a Lexington housewife.

It is what you, a blood donor, can provide that may mean all the difference between life and death to our fighting men, and that has already reduced the death rate among our wounded soldiers to less than one per cent.

This valuable and vital contribution to our boys (perhaps even your own) is a small thing compared to their job. Register now with the Red Cross and make sure no lives will be lost, because you did not "get around" to donating a pint of blood.

At Least 600 Blood Donors Are Needed This Month For The Visit Of The Red Cross Mobile Unit To Mansfield On July 29, 30, 31

Because of the unusually heavy quota of blood donors for this month, 600 registrants are required for the visit of the Mobile Unit on July 29th, 30th, and 31st. If you have been intending to be a blood donor, this is a most opportune time to put this good intention into effect. Any blood donor will tell you that the methods used in extracting blood from your veins is painless, causes no ill effects, and within an hour you can be back on the job again. Register now; just phone 1494-6; your contribution and that of thousands of other unselfish and patriotic people are saving many lives everyday.

Register NOW at Red Cross Headquarters (Dial 1494-6) For This Vital and Valuable Life-Saving Aid to Our Fighting Men!

Books For Children

(Available at Mansfield Public Library)

When news came to the ship of the attack on Pearl Harbor the crew had sighted an overturned ship. Should they rescue it, or return at once to port? The answer is found in the adventure story for boys which will be placed on the shelves of the Mansfield public library in the children's room Saturday.

SALVAGE, by Felix Riesenberg, jr.—The decision of the crew of the Albatross to seek out the overturned ship just sighted by Bob Nelson led to their capture by a raider. Their escape was complicated by a storm and a lack of fuel. All these adventures and many more as related by an author who knows the sea make this an exciting story. The author's father was the last Captain Felix Riesenberg.

JENNY'S SECRET ISLAND, by Phyllis Garrard — Jenny Sinclair was unpredictable but even she would never guess she would be shipwrecked and marooned from her own boat. The island where she took refuge became her secret island. Her solution of the cannonball mystery made it possible for her to go to school in Canada and allowed her dearest dream to come true.

The carp fish originally came from China and India and was imported by man into Europe and this country.

Yank Submarine Torpedoed Jap Sub on Surface

NEW ORLEANS — (U.P.) — Chief Petty Officer Ira Arch Francis, 26-year-old veteran of sub warfare in the Pacific, told recently how the underseas craft he was on in Japanese waters knocked off an enemy sub--one of the first such cases on record.

Three days after Pearl Harbor, the sub on which Francis was serving as quartermaster set out to help deliver America's return visit to the Japanese.

"We reached a certain Japanese harbor and hove to, remaining submerged until nightfall when we surfaced," he said.

"Well, ten days went by before any ships came out. We sighted a freighter and loosed a torpedo at her but missed. Three days later another big freighter passed near us. We got her. Then the captain decided we'd better move.

"Not long after that, the submarine's radio flashed word that enemy subs were shelling Midway Island. The skipper thought we might get a sub if we played our cards right. And we did. We torpedoed one on the surface."

The eighth naval district said "this is one of the first times, if not the only time, that one submarine has destroyed another."

Informal Service Read In First English Lutheran Church

Before a group of friends and relatives in the First English Lutheran church at 3:30 Wednesday afternoon, Rev. Grover E. Swoyer read the nuptial service which united in marriage Miss Eloise J. Harbaugh, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. T. Harbaugh, 208 Helen avenue, and C. Robert Hunt, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Hunt of Lakewood.

Preceding the informal ceremony, Miss Anna Klippel played a program of organ music including "Cantilene Nuptiale," by Du Bois; "Salute D' Amour" by Elgar, "I Love You Truly," by Bond and "Because," by D'Hardelot. Shubert's "Ave Maria" was heard during the ceremony. "Bridal Chorus" from "Lohengrin," by Wagner and Mendelssohn's "Wedding March" were used as the processional and recessional.

The bride wore a white jersey street length gown styled with a gathered skirt, short sleeves and v-neck line. Her only jewelry was a sterling silver bracelet, a gift of the bridegroom. She carried a round hand bouquet of stephanotis, gardenias and swansonia with a shower of white satin ribbons.

A close friend of the bride, Miss Helen Short was her only attendant. Miss Short wore a frock with a white bodice and gathered print skirt. Her bouquet was the same style as that of the bride. It was composed of pastel colored flowers including yellow roses, blue delphinium, pink and lavendar sweet peas and pale pink pom pon asters. Matching narrow satin ribbons were showered from the top of the bouquet.

Best man for Mr. Hunt was Wilbur Shaler, a close friend.

Mrs. Harbaugh appeared at the wedding in a dusty rose dress, with which she wore navy blue accessories. She wore a corsage of pink roses and swansonia tied with white ribbon. A navy blue dress with white accessories was worn by Mrs. Hunt. Pink roses and pale pink pom pon asters tied with pink satin ribbon made up the corsage which she wore.

Following the ceremony, a reception for friends and relatives was given at the home of the bride's parents. The wedding party was seated at a long table centered with a floral arrangement of sweet peas in pastel shades, and a tiered wedding cake topped with a miniature bride and groom.

When the couple left for a brief wedding trip, the new Mrs. Hunt wore a red and white flowered frock of silk jersey with black accessories and a gardenia corsage.

Mrs. Hunt is a graduate of Mansfield Senior high school. She is employed in the circulation department of the Mansfield News-Journal.

Mr. Hunt is a graduate of Lakewood high school, Roscoe Turner Aeronautical school and Harrington Air Service school, where he is a flight instructor.

Out of town guests attending the wedding were the bridegroom's parents and sister, Miss Patricia Hunt, and Mrs. Carrie Dickison of Lakewood, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Bachman of Marion, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Walthers of Bucyrus and Mrs. Leah Mitchell of Willard.

Dinner was served at 6:30 and at the close the wedding march was played. A wedding cake topped with a miniature bride and groom and a gift were presented to Mrs. Hymes, the former Mrs. Myrtle Stoltzer.

Pioneer manufacturer of Fuller brushes for home and industry

You'll meet old friends working in war factories too!

FULLER Brushes are essential to the maintenance of health, cleanliness and morale. War requirements have cut into our sources of raw materials. We have been compelled to redesign some of our products. But we shall continue to supply these useful, dependable old friends — friends that have saved millions of grateful women so much time, and lightened their house work immeasurably.

Not only on the home front but on the battlefront and in industry Fuller Brushes are performing all sorts of tasks. They're cleaning the bores and breaches of every type of gun — from rifles to 240 mm. Howitzers — the biggest mobile gun in the Army.

Fuller Brushes are built into machines that card wool and cotton. They comb, brush and finish all sorts of fabrics — fabrics that go into uniforms, blankets, tents and much other equipment for our soldiers and sailors.

Other Fuller Brushes are applied to machines in food packing plants, flour mills, bakeries and fruit grading sheds. They scrub and polish, wash and clean everything from sheets of steel and brass as they are produced in the rolling mills, to street cars and buses that carry war workers to the job.

To supply these urgent military and industrial needs is our first duty. To supply the ever increasing requirements of our home customers is an obligation which we are also meeting.

Chicken Pie Helps Save Red Stamps

By BETSY NEWMAN

If you've one of those families which is large enough so your ration books rate a standing roast, go to it. For the small families a chicken now and then is relished by the best of men—and women.

Today's Menu.

Chicken Pot Pie Boiled Potatoes
Corn Cut From Cob
Lettuce with French Dressing
Ice Cream Cake
Coffee

Chicken Pot Pie.

1 chicken
¼ lb. pork
Seasoning
Water or stock, about 1 qt.
Dumplings

Cut chicken into rather small pieces and dice pork. Lay them in a good-sized saucepan, cover with hot water or stock and bring to boiling point, keeping closely covered, and simmer for 1 to 2 hours, depending upon the age of chicken. Season when about half done. Put in dumplings 30 minutes before serving time, keeping pan closely covered till they are done. Pile meat in center of platter, arrange dumplings around it. Be sure there is plenty of gravy.

Dumplings.

1½ cups flour
1½ tsps. baking powder
½ tsp salt
Milk to mix soft dough

Sift flour, salt and baking power together twice; add milk (it will probably take a scant ⅔ cup), mix thoroughly but quickly, and drop by small tablespoonfuls into hot gravy.

HOROSCOPE

For Friday, July 16.

The affairs of this day may be expected to move at high tempo, with possibly much excitement, commotion and thrills, in whatever direction the energies, resources, opportunities and ambitions may be turned by powerful planetary influence. Both practical, business, industrial and everyday affairs are under high pressure for constructive action and the personal life runs in quite as decisive, dramatic and spectacular grooves. In fact the romantic and emotional may be the inspiration for heightened activity.

Those whose birthday it is may expect a year of exciting and dramatic adventures, creating high tension and excitement both in the home and business associations. In the latter it is advised to push all matters to decisive goals as there is prospect of constructive and lucrative work by quick and determined attack. In the realm of the emotional or affectional life there may be sudden and unforeseen developments, with celebration, parties or other exciting functions, giving great joy and gratification, albeit much domestic tumult, annoyance, or friction.

A child born on this day may have much skill and ability in practical matters, with much to be gained by its skill, determination and enterprise.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

YOU CAN AFFORD IT

When you have plenty of re-entries to your hand, in the form of probable trick winning high cards, you can afford to present the declarer a trick in your long suit by leading away from its honors against his No Trump game. The trick lost thereby can be regained probably through your establishing one or more low cards. But if the contract against which you are leading is a suit, the waste of a high card cannot be regained, as the declarer probably will ruff your little ones after they are established.

	♠ Q 8 7 6 ♥ Q 3 ♦ K J 7 5 ♣ J 9 2
♠ K J ♥ K J 10 7 2 ♦ A 10 4 ♣ 6 4 3	N W E S	♠ 10 9 5 ♥ 9 8 ♦ 9 6 3 2 ♣ Q 10 7 5
	♠ A 4 3 2 ♥ A 6 5 4 ♦ Q 8 ♣ A K 8

(Dealer: East. North-South vulnerable.)

East	South	West	North
Pass	1 ♠	2 ♥	2 ♠
Pass	2 NT	Pass	3 ♠
Pass	3 NT

That was bad bidding, as the hands belongs in 4-Spades, but at two tables South got into 3-No Trumps. One of them made it because West feared leading from his heart K, and so opened the club 6—bad bridge when his own hand was that strong. South was able, there, to build up three tricks in spades, three in clubs, two in diamonds and one in hearts for his game.

West at the other No Trump table led his heart J, giving the Q a trick. A bit later, when he scored with his spade K, he knocked out the last heart stopper of South. Shortly after that, he was in with his diamond A, whereupon he took three hearts to set the contract.

Normal results came at several tables, where South made exactly 4-Spades because West led a club. Those declarers lost one trick each in diamonds, spades and hearts. Top for South was also at a 4-Spade contract, but an extra trick got made because West led his heart J. That prevented any heart losers at all, nothing being dropped except one trick in spades and one in diamonds. One losing heart was ruffed and one parked on a diamond.

It would be hard to find a better example of how that lead away from a tenace in a long suit would pay against a No Trump and prove costly against a suit.

Tomorrow's Problem.

	♠ A 8 ♥ Q J 8 7 4 3 2 ♦ A 9 ♣ 9 7

	♠ K 10 3 ♥ K ♦ Q J 5 ♣ A Q 10 4 3 2

(Dealer: North. Neither side vulnerable.)

If West leads the 4 of the spades which his partner has bid, South scoring with the K and returning the heart K, how can West figure out the best defense against the 3-No Trump contract?

Wife Tries Not to Nag At Husband

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

A reader who signs herself "Wife - Trying - Not-to-Nag" (and goodness knows she seems to have something to nag about) writes me of her experiences.

She was prompted to write this letter by reading here that a man got a divorce from his wife because she nagged him to such an extent he was unable to work well in a war production plant.

My correspondent describes herself as one who had always been considered "interesting though married." She has kept her figure and her looks, and is more in love with her husband than when they were first married. He has always appealed to women, but has never gone in for anything more than friendship with them, because, as she says, "he is an unassuming person and a gentleman to boot."

Enter the siren. The plant where her husband is employed found it necessary to hire women to work in the shop along with the men. Soon the husband was telling his wife about a girl who was "interesting, intelligent, a good sport, etc."—the wife invited the girl to her home, and the first thing she discovered was that her husband and the girl had been seeing each other. A weekend trip, ostensibly taken with the "boys", was in this girl's company.

"I know that women are ruthless when it comes to something they want," writes this wife. "Well, I wanted my husband and my daughter wanted her father. My husband said he didn't love the girl, but the fact remained that she had asked him to divorce me and he asked me to get a job saying the draft would get him. He is 36 and in an essential war industry.

"Separation and divorce with plenty of grounds loomed on the horizon. I wept until I was nearly blind; I didn't know what to do. I'd never in my worst nightmare imagined this state of affairs between my husband and me. The wreck of three people's lives—my husband, my daughter and myself. I wasn't considering the girl: why should I? She was 21, a college graduate, a woman drawing down a man's wage. And incidentally, a deeply religious girl, one who condemned the 'loose affairs' she knew were going on in the plant between other men and women.

"There are very few eligible men left, thanks to the Draft. The man situation is in terrible shape, as far as family life is concerned.

"I know that many women are working because their husbands are in service, or because they need the money to meet the rise in the cost of living, and some are working to help in the war effort. But the rest are working for money, and have never held a job in their lives.

"It would be very interesting to check on the man you wrote about in your column, who got a divorce because of a nagging wife, and see if now that he is free, he is getting the rest he claimed necessary for his war work, or if he is having a new lease on life with a charming young creature."

What do my readers think of this situation? And to what type of religion does this girl subscribe? She condemns "loose affairs" but doesn't hesitate to break up a family.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

I do not think I ever had a more distasteful task than the "frisking" of Ruth Hayes. But I did a thorough job even though my flesh recoiled at touching the despicable woman, and I was aware of her venomous hatred, so strong that it seemed to be exuding from her every pore.

"That is all, I am sure," I said finally, stepping back from her.

"Nice little arsenal," Dicky commented, examining a second pistol and three different sizes of stilettos which the "Wilderness Woman" had concealed upon her person.

I saw a sudden avid flash in her eyes, and fairly screamed at my husband.

"Don't touch the points of those stilettos! I'm sure they are poisoned!"

Ruth Hayes laughed harshly, but her mirth was edged with suppressed fury.

"Such an imagination!" she sneered. "No wonder you write plays! But I should think soap operas—the kind with spies in them — would be more in your line."

"Perhaps she's just getting material for one," Dicky suggested airily, as he wrapped the stilettos carefully in paper. Then he put them, with the gun, into the closet where I had deposited the first gun he had taken from her.

Ostentatiously locking the closet door, he walked to my desk, put the key in it, and then locked the desk, putting its key into his pocket. But before he had finished, Ruth Hayes snapped out an angry question, which, I guessed, held distinct uneasiness.

"What do you mean by that crack?" she demanded.

"Oh, nothing, nothing at all!" Dicky replied. "It just semed required at that point by the script. Sorry it annoyed you. And now, I shall be delighted to release your wrists and ankles. Hold them out, please. Madge, stand back out of kicking distance. I don't trust this baby."

If looks could kill, Dicky and I would no longer be in the land of the living. But as I moved away, obeying Dicky's directions, she took her venom out in words.

"Don't worry!" she said. "I wouldn't soil my shoes on her."

"I warned you before," Dicky said. "One more word and I gag you while my wife paddles you."

His words must have carried conviction for she fell suddenly silent, and Dicky untied her wrists and ankles.

"There!" he said. "That job is finished, and I am also finished with you. The door is over there. You can find your way out, and no doubt can locate your gentlemanly escorts."

"But I'm not finished!" Ruth Hayes announced, getting to her feet while both Dicky and I watched her warily. "I came here to find out something, and I want it. You two bullies have made it impossible for me to get it tonight, but you pride yourselves on keeping your word, I believe."

She whirled, pointing her forefinger at me.

"In that telegram," she said, "you promised me that Katharine Bickett would be at the place I designated tomorrow night at the same time."

I looked at her with cold steadiness.

"She will be there," I said, "if you still want her there."

"What do you mean by that?" she demanded.

"It ought to be very obvious," Dicky remarked. "You ought to know, from what I have told you tonight, that Katharine knows nothing of her husband's whereabouts. Therefore, there is no possible reason why you should wish to see her."

"You don't think I believe that rot you told me," she snapped. "I want to hear what Katharine herself has to say, and if you keep your word, she'll be over."

"I promise you she shall be there, unless you send word before then that the appointment is cancelled." I told her, and with that she whirled and darted toward the double doors leading out on the balcony.

Dicky made no more to stop her, but gave me a direction prison-fashion, out of the corner of his mouth, which I promptly obeyed.

"Stop her, Dicky!" I screamed. "She means to jump from the balcony!"

SHORT STORY—

'LOVE APPLES'

THE three-year-old feud between Melissa Caruthers and Uncle Billy Winters, which had its beginning in good natured rivalry, had ripened into an all-out offensive. Funny, how a little thing like the growing of tomatoes could have caused such a caustic exchange of monosyllables between two friends.

The close proximity of Melissa's spick little cottage behind the white picket fence to the equally spick cottage of Uncle Billy didn't help matters any either. It was a constant reminder to Melissa having Uncle Billy under her nose like that, of her failure. They were to have been married in the summer of 1940, but Uncle Billy laughingly told Melissa that he wouldn't marry her until she could grow tomatoes equally fine as the ones he grew.

Silly? Of course it was downright silly, but Melissa took up the challenge and set to work. She prepared the soil with a fine hand and set her plants out lovingly. But that first year her tomato plants were a sorry sight to see.

Melissa wasn't one to give up easily so she kept trying. The next year she got the most expensive plants she could buy and read up on how to cultivate them but Uncle Billy's bore fruit—and best.

Uncle Billy got cocky somewhere along the way. Two years passed and still Melissa's tomatoes didn't come up to his standard. So Melissa kept right on teaching school and Uncle Billy kept right on growing prize tomatoes.

In the spring of 1943 Melissa got panicky. She wasn't getting any younger. In fact, she was crowding 40 and she decided that it was this year or never.

It was one of those fine days in early spring when the air is full of growing magic and the earth smells like a planter's paradise that Melissa became inspired. Maybe heaven took pity on her for the seeds she sowed that day bore fruit.

Uncle Billy was across the fence watching her out of the corner of his eye but she ignored him completely. He stood it as long as he could and then he came to the fence and said, "Seems like you're powerful standoffish of late Lissy, what's eatin' you? Seems like somethings come between us."

'Nothin's come between us," Melissa said testily. "Nothing that a little of God's sunshine and rain won't remedy," and her blue eyes sparkled. "This is the year Billy. I feel it here," and she placed her hand over her heart dramatically.

"The year for what?" Uncle Bill asked as if he didn't know.

"Tomatoes!" shrilled Melissa.

"Oh, them," said Billy scratching his chin. "Plumb forgot about tomatoes—besides it's too early to set plants. Don't tell me that you're going to try to raise your own plants this year!" He eyed the cold frame with suspicion.

"It's a new variety," said Melissa secretively. "No reason I can't raise my own plants if you can."

Uncle Billy only said 'Hrmph!" and turned back to his garden.

Very soon it was time to set tomato plants. Uncle Billy never knew when Melissa set hers because she transplanted them the week end he went to Lincoln and by the time he returned her plants were sturdy and erect and high.

The following Monday morning Uncle Billy was in his garden setting his tomato plants. He'd never told Melissa about that hot house in Lincoln. That was his secret. He chuckled to himself and then he walked to the fence between his place and Melissa's. He stared, adjusted his bi-focals and stared again.

Melissa opened her back door. "Hello Will," she said cheerily. "Have a nice trip?"

"Good enough," Uncle Billy said. "Well I must say it didn't improve your disposition any."

Uncle Billy ignored her remark as he pointed with trembling finger at the tomato plants. "Who sold you those plants?" he shouted.

"Why no one," said Melissa. "I grew them from seed."

"Rot! You never did it before. It's not possible!" roared Uncle Billy. "And they're ahead of mine this year!"

"So you doubt my word," said Melissa. "Well I might have expected it," and she turned away.

For several weeks Uncle Billy never once spoke to Melissa and the spring went out of her step.

When the green tomatoes began to set on the vines Melissa swallowed her pride and broke the silence that had stood like a wall between her and Uncle Billy. She walked gaily to the fence one evening and called, "How's your disposition today, Will?" Can you spare a speck?"

Uncle Billy was staking his tomato plants but he stopped and drew himself up to his full six feet. "Shock! What have you been up to now, Melissa? You'll be tellin' me next that you've got ripe tomatoes on those fake vines of yours."

"That's just what I have, Will," said Melissa softly.

Uncle Billy strode to the fence. There before his eyes hung tomatoes such as he had not seen outside a hot house. His eyes bulged. But instead of being glad he was like a spoiled boy. He spluttered, turned on his heel and walked away.

Melissa just sat down on the bench outside the garden gate and cried and cried. She must have been saving her tears for three disappointed springs for the sun went down and she still sat on.

After a while the little gate between the two houses opened and Uncle Billy came through carrying a basket. He said, 'I've been watchin' you Lissy, and you didn't go in for supper so I thought you'd share some of mine."

Melissa's face cleared like the sky after an April shower and she said softly, "Oh Billy you shouldn' But let's go inside."

"No, it's a picnic out here to celebrate," said Uncle Billy.

"Celebrate what?" asked Melissa shyly.

"Our marriage!" said Uncle Billy. "You finally did it. I'd begun to think that you'd never catch on to how I grew tomatoes," and he kissed her square on the lips.

As Melissa savored the sweetness of Uncle Billy's kiss she hoped that it wouldn't make any difference to him if he ever found out that she'd pinned those hot house tomatoes on the vines with safety pins.
